

Held back? Unleash your career at PIR

Consulting done right.

Do you want to take your career in a direction towards shaping your own success together with interesting clients and sharp colleagues?

We are looking for experienced new colleagues who are as passionate about procurement and value creation as we are, who can complement our team and help make PIR an even stronger partner to our current and future clients.

Join our team of driven consultants, in a company where you have a direct impact on the success and future of the business.

At PIR you will find opportunity to grow as a professional and to be a driving part of an exciting growth journey, as we build the company for the future.

We think you have spent a significant part of your career in a consulting environment, where you have thrived in both creating value for your customers and in creating business opportunities.

We are looking for driven leaders within management consulting to join our team in Stockholm. Read more about who we are, what drives us, and get in touch at procureitright.com
