

Why multiculturalism works for us

Multiculturalism is important for many reasons such as creating diversity in schools and communities to prevent racial segregation. As my school is very multicultural, I can see many benefits of having different cultures within a community such as a school. I asked teachers and students in my school why they thought multiculturalism is a success in school and in general, here is what they thought:

“Multiculturalism is important to reflect inner city life and we are able to learn from others what keeps us open to other cultures and ideals and builds up our respect for other, learn to find new ways of doing things. Experience for the real world (different ethnicities.)”

“Educates on different faiths and backgrounds, more accepting. Bradford is more segregated and there is more race riots. When she moved here she sees no divide.”

“Brings richness, culture, experiences, reflects local community. Need the right mind-set of diversity and equality.”

“In London, it is multicultural and leads to them having more success.”

“We can learn to communicate, and learn about cultures. There is less racism.”

“We can learn about the world instead of just England. Can learn about other countries and traditions.”

As you can see, multiculturalism is seen as a success by many people who come from different backgrounds.
