

Steve from Sutton Coldfield wanted to expand his homes' living space and engaged the expertise of DHP Construction. This is his story.

THE PROJECT: STEEL FRAMED EXTENSION WITH UNDERFLOOR HEATING & POLISHED CONCRETE FLOOR

"We discussed our project with numerous contractors as we wanted a builder who could understand what we wanted and visualise what we were after. Paul was without a shadow of a doubt the most switched on.

He spent a lot of time discussing what we wanted to achieve. He then provided a very detailed proposal, so I knew what to expect."

THE DHP APPROACH

"Paul has given us something that flows between the house and the garden. It's sympathetic to the house architecture providing us with something that had that real modern 'wow' factor while working with the original Edwardian features.

The ground works were very complicated and there was an unbelievable amount of steel work, but DHP made me feel this whole experience was a partnership. We learnt together, solved problems together and built a strong relationship.

The whole DHP team were fantastic, I really enjoyed having them around. If I saw any of them in the street I'd stop for a chat. They all took the time to understand what I was after while really grafting. Late nights, weekends, nothing was ever too much, and their attention to detail was exemplary."

"DHP were head & shoulders above the rest. They cared about the project just as much as we did."
