

Elnaz Namaki's hygge inspired furniture collection

London-based interior design and creative direction firm, Elnaz Namaki Studio, launched its first furniture collection – Luuna – during this year's London Design Fair.

Elnaz Namaki Studio's rich technical expertise and meticulous attention to detail have been brought to play, striking the perfect balance between design and function.

Comprised of 11 bespoke pieces, the collection takes its name and design philosophy from the moon. Much as the moon brings a universal constant and symbolic connection to time and place, the Luuna pieces are designed to bring something unique yet constant to every space.

The Luuna collection is also inspired by hygge, and evokes all the warmth and comfort this movement epitomises. These mid-century inspired ergonomic and sculptural pieces are hand-made in England by highly-skilled English craftsmen.

The core material of the collection is shearling – carefully chosen for its organic, natural and allergen free qualities. Curly and straight-haired merino and aviator shearling is contrasted against suede, leather, wood and metal.

The choice of mid-century pop art colours – namely pink, grey, black and white – creates strikingly bold yet classic pieces, which bring soul, depth and originality to every interior.
