

Client Support Professional Recruitment Specialists

Thank you for showing your interest in this new, exciting way of working from your own home taking customer service calls for well recognised UK businesses. Please do read through the rest of this documentation very carefully, as it contains lots and lots of important information regarding these roles, as well as how best to go about applying if you are interested.

The technical term for the type of work that we are presenting you with here today is called 'Home-shoring', and it is expected to play a very important part in the future of 'Call Centre Work' here in the UK.

A few of the well known companies who already employ 'Home-shoring' practices within their own organisations here in the UK include:-

- AA
- British Gas
- BT
- Gala Bingo
- Photobox
- Yell.com

This type of work already has a strong proven track record and these types of positions have now become highly sought after, and so you have been fortunate to discover this exciting opportunity through one of our many on-line job advertisements!

Types of Work

The type of work being offered here today is predominantly taking inbound calls. What this means is that the calls will be coming through to you in your own home, over your landline and internet, onto your PC or laptop via software applications and patented routing software directly from the main call centre itself.

You will be taking customers details and confidential information and then processing it within the clients own actual software using your own computer in real-time, as well as helping with whatever other general enquiries the customer may also have.

For example you may take a call from someone who wants to book a holiday, or has broken down, or from someone who perhaps needs some help with their TV or TV package etc.

You can only be trained to service one client / company at a time but it is your choice if you then wish to either add or try out a different company or client in the future.

The clients own computer systems will be made accessible to you on your desktop via your broadband and everything is browser based, so you will be using the very same tools that you would be if your were working in the actual clients call centre itself.

The software companies we use are all leading brand names for example Citrix and Avaya, Adobe etc, and we have found them to be the very best tools for this type of work as they incorporate all of the top-notch security features that our clients demand.

Clients/Work

We currently work alongside many UK brand name companies including a Coffee Company, an Extended Warranty Company, an International Holiday Company, and a National Power Company also.

Only after you have officially applied can we then name the actual companies involved, as we have to adhere to a strict non-disclosure agreement that we have signed. And this may be why you have possibly not heard of this way of working before also, as some of the companies that we have contracted to are not yet ready to inform the general public about what we do due to possible stigma.

Servicing Software/Schedules and Hours

This software takes over you own phone line when you log in, and whenever you log out your phone line becomes your own again.

You will never have to pay for any calls while logged in, and this software also monitors how much time you have spent working, so we will always know how much we need to pay you.

Highly Flexible Hours

You will be booking your own schedule of hours to service and the actual hours are posted 2 weeks in advance so you can always plan ahead.

Most of the contracts will have a minimum number of hours a week you must work attached to them depending on client needs (usually 15-20 hours). You will get a schedule of hours from which you can select your own hours to service and you can then post them in increments of 30 minutes, usually within a timeframe of 7am -11pm Monday to Sunday depending on which client or contract you are signed up to.

Although there are minimums set, many agents are actually able to do 30-45 hours a week work on a regular basis – but at the end of the day it is mostly going to be you who chooses on which days you will wish to service and at what times.

What equipment do you need?

The items listed below are the essentials that you will need in order to do the job at hand, and although there is an initial outlay involved the costs are minimal really when you consider that you will be gaining the freedom and flexibility of working from the comfort of your own home.

In addition to this these entire costs can be offset against your income tax on your tax return - just be sure to keep hold of your receipts!

1. First of all you will need a PC or a Laptop + Broadband and a Telephone Line. (£Varies)

Many people will already have these items included as part of their household. Please do note however that on each individual program there is a minimum spec that will apply. All connections will also need to be wired (no wireless allowed) and the minimum broadband speed requirements for most clients programs are currently 3.0 mbps minimum download, and 1.0 mbps minimum upload. If you are currently unable to reach these speeds then you may find that an upgrade (to fibre for example) could still be an option for you.

For a complete up to date downloadable systems policy booklet, please visit here:-

2. Client Training Course Fee (Approx £30)

You will not have to spend anything on the course until after you are fully satisfied in the information provided, have passed any pre-course interviews, and are completely sure that the clients programme is for you. The reason there is a fee for the courses is because there is always a limited number of spaces, and we have to make sure that the people who are actually enrolled are going to be as interested and committed to the course as possible. The cost of the actual course may vary depending on the actual client and length of training involved.

After you have completed a client's course you can expect to start working for that client pretty much straight away, and would generally start booking the hours you want to work a week or so in advance before the course ends.

Some client's will offer certification incentives as well, and one example of this would be a client who is currently offering an incentive of a ± 150 cash payment on top of your wages once the initial 3 month contract is completed also.

3. Basic DBS/CRB Certificate. (Approx £25)

As you are going to be handling credit card & payment details and will have the ability to change data in a customer's account from within your own home environment, you will of course need one of these.

We can accept a current DBS/CBS if it's dated within 6 months, however if you don't already have one then don't worry as the admissions process will help you to get one.

4. VoIP/Skype Headset. (£10-20)

These are vital to have for all training courses and seminars, and will allow you to communicate with other people via your PC – we have found the USB ones to work better than the Jack Plug Type ones.

If you have speakers and a mic on your PC then you won't need one of these, and some Playstation or XBOX gaming mics may be able to fit your PC also.

5. Office Style Headset & Telephone. (approx £40-50 for both on Ebay)

And finally, of course you will also need to invest in a good phone that can be operated hands free via a headset. The BT Converse 2100 is a good example of this. (RJ11 Headset required)

Training

This is all done through E-Learning, Live Instructor led Classrooms. There is no need to go anywhere as we utilise the latest technology to provide you with everything that you need via your own PC screen.

An example screenshot is shown above. (Adobe is a well known brand of software and this web based application is utilised to help train our agents.)

Only the Live Instructor appears on the Web cam, so you don't need to worry about what you look like at all, although you will be required to speak occasionally as well as answer the odd question!

Training courses usually lasts from between 2 to 5 weeks depending on which client you serve, and consist of up to 4 hours in class per day (Mon-Fri). There are usually a couple of course times to choose from (e.g. 10am-2pm or 6pm-10pm), but you will have to be punctual each day as you would be if you were attending a local school or college class.

During class the Live Instructor will take you through various different slides while at the same time demonstrate to you how the work is to be done, and how to navigate the clients own software on your pc or laptop.

A very high percentage of our agents pass the clients course, and we are always here to offer additional help if required so as to give you the maximum chance of succeeding and being able to provide actual work. However, you will need to be a dedicated and self motivated person, customer service orientated as well as with a strong desire to problem solve.

The course instructor will be someone who started out just like you, but has gained enough experience in the client to know how to teach it back to other trainee agents, and the courses are laid out in a way for us to be able to cater to all learning abilities.

Our Training courses will teach you the basics and more, so that when you go Live taking calls you will have all of the information you need and there is also chat support rooms run by supervisory figures, so that all of the support that you need will be there to assist you even when you are actually working from home by yourself.

There are also rewards for loyalty to the work that you do, with the possibility of advancement further on as you learn the way the work is laid out, so you could eventually be picked out for a chat supervisory role and we always have a remote supervisor to reach out to while people are at work, similar to a Team Manager in a contact centre who are there solely to help, and once again they will have started out in just the same way as you are now also.

Being your own Boss (Self-Employment)

Because of the flexibility of this type of work and the contracts also, your employment status is required to be that of self-employed. There are many financial benefits to being self-employed, it costs nothing to register, and this simple process can be done easily online.

When you actually look into self employment for the first time it may all seem be a bit daunting but we are here to help you and all I can say is that after being self-employed myself for a number of years it has been very rewarding and worthwhile.

You can even claim for things like gas and electric, phone line and broadband, petrol and mileage etc and offset it all against your gross monthly Income as these are all the sort of things that you will need to have in order to be able to do the sort of work that you do anyway.

Also, if you are responsible for paying council tax at all in your home then remember to always subtract any eligible deductions from your income before telling the council your actual earnings in total as this could possibly reduce the amount of council tax that you will be asked for.

As you will be responsible for your own supplies etc, you can also safely tell her majesty's revenue and customs (HMRC), that you will be working a 30 hour week or more even if you are only doing the minimum number of hours work a week required as the remaining hours can be made up by you in other ways, for example if you are in training or revising, maintaining your equipment or keeping up to date with your book keeping etc.

Registering as Self-Employed

If you haven't done so already then before you can start working for any of our clients you will also need to register as self-employed with the government at:-

https://www.gov.uk/log-in-file-self-assessment-tax-return/register-if-youre-selfemployed

(Don't worry you can still do this safely if you are currently signing on as unemployed, but of course you must always sign off on the very first day that you start to get paid.)

If you have any further questions regarding this process then you can speak directly with someone at HMRC by phoning 0300 200 3500 either Monday to Friday between 8am to 8pm or Saturday between 8am and 4pm.

Rates of Pay

You can expect to earn at least minimum wage up to approx $\pounds 10$ an hour or possibly even more depending on your ability and performance.

Pay is determined by the metrics (statistics) that you produce i.e. turning up on time will increase your hourly rate as will the quality of the calls and the average handling time per call will all factor in as well.

Many agents are already earning a regular £9-£12 an hour on average or more, and there is a constant volume of calls coming in and so plenty of work that needs to be done.

How and when will I get paid?

Our agents are always paid twice monthly, two weeks behind, and payments are always sent direct to your bank via bank transfer, usually on the 9th and then the 23rd of each month unless it's on a weekend when it will usually be sent a day or two either side.

Platform Costs

It is important that we let you know now that our partners do charge a bimonthly platform rental fee of £10 every pay cycle and that there will also be a £15 bimonthly administration fee.*

What this means is that for every pay cycle (half month) that you work and get paid you will be charged a £25 fee for using the platform (which is the equivalent of an $\pounds 11.53p$ per week deduction from your wages.)

It is good to remember that while you are working from home you will be saving on some of the usual costs associated with having a job; for example in either fuel or bus/train fare in getting to work and back etc and we would also like to point out that these small costs are fixed so that no matter how many hours you work in a week they will always stay the same.

*When registering your interest you will also be given the option to start your own call centre company. If you do choose this option then your platform costs will be reduced to £10 per pay cycle only, however you will also have to deal with all of the other extra costs and responsibilities associated with running your own company.

Registering your interest

Once again we would like to thank you for expressing your interest in our services, and do hope that you have found the information provided here useful. We also hope that you will now be happy to move ahead and 'take the plunge' by completing the following few simple steps in order to fully register your interest:-

PLEASE NOTE:- As long as our referral code information is entered correctly at the point of registration, and you are found to be eligible for the referral fee, then we are able to guarantee that you personally will receive all of any certification bonus (if one is applicable) in its entirety. However, you not enrolling on a course within 28 days or less of creating your profile will invalidate our referral. If for this or any other reason you are found not to be eligible for the referral fee then any certification bonus (first course only) will need to be split between you (60%) and our IBO (40%). Thank you.

Step 3. Enrol into a Client Specific Course that suits you.

At this stage you will be presented with all of the currently available offers and will be able to view each of the available clients programs complete details also.

Whenever you choose to enrol on a clients program there will be a short telephone interview with an automated (or possibly live) admissions specialist also. PLEASE ALSO NOTE:- Enrolment for all courses now closes two weeks before the class is due to start. This is to ensure that anyone who enrols will have at least two weeks to apply for their CRB/DBS certificate. CRB/DBS certificates usually take 10 working days to process however in some rare cases they may take even longer, so please do ensure to leave yourself as much time as possible when applying. Thank you.

Once you have successfully registered your profile with us you will also be eligible to attend a 'new user information session'. Full details of the current information sessions and the times that they will be running can be found here:-
