News in brief

OWNER OF GREAT NORTHERN HOTEL SET TO EXPAND

The owner of London's Great Northern hotel could open up to eight hotels over the next 12 years. Jeremy Robson, of asset management company Ram, explained that he is already developing a 65-bedroom hotel in Courchevel, France, with a third hotel in Barbados also on the cards and a second in the UK "a possibility".

The 91-bedroom Great Northern has just become the first European hotel to join the Tribute Portfolio, the collection of independent properties launched by Starwood Hotels & Resorts.
