Madison Medical Professionals

Madison Medical Professionals were first made aware of the need for Cyber Essentials when they were in the process of completing a tender bid for NHS contracts. Included within this tender, was a requirement for tendering organisations to be Cyber Essentials certified.

When we were contacted, Madison Medical Professionals had already previously commenced the Cyber Essentials process earlier in 2016 using a Certification Body under a different Accreditation Body - (IntaForensics are accredited by IASME). However, they were not particularly happy with the lack of progress they had made in this time. As well as this, they had also been advised that they would have to implement an extensive and expensive IT infrastructure replacement program in order to achieve the Cyber Essentials certification - this was not the case.

Once Madison Medical Professionals provided a detailed overview of their IT systems and discussed their requirements with IntaForensics Director of Professional Services - Damian Walton, and the rest of our Professional Services Team, we were able to offer some basic guidance and clarified the scheme requirements.

“I would highly recommend using IntaForensics to any SME requiring Cyber Essentials certification. I personally have limited IT knowledge and having had a bad experience with a previous supplier, I was concerned about contacting a new supplier and being unable to fully express exactly what our requirements were. Having spoken to Damian Walton, it was clear I had nothing to worry about.”

Following some elementary yet effective policy and procedure changes, Madison Medical Professionals completed their Cyber Essentials basic self-assessment questionnaire through the IntaForensics online Portal and, following our verification of their submission, it was our pleasure to award a pass.

“Damian understood the set-up of our systems, gave clear and concise instructions and guided me through the process from start to finish. He was polite, friendly and professional every step of the way resulting in Madison Medical Professionals gaining full Cyber Essentials accreditation.”

Founded in 2009, Madison Medical is a total solutions recruitment company for the medical sector. With specialist knowledge of the medical industry and years of experience in order to provide the best service to medical professionals and organisations.
