Of course everyone in the 9.30 congregation has a part to play in keeping BOAT's large fleet of projects afloat. We are very grateful for the generous response to our appeals for help, the initiative, skill and hard work used to raise funds in so many ways

CHAIRMAN'S FOREWORD 2016

Dear Friends of BOAT,

There are times when even the most sanguine among us can feel overwhelmed by the problems which beset the world. Times when we question what a few ordinary people can do to ease the heart-rending suffering afflicting so many men, women and children.

Not many of us have the courage to visit places marked red by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. We can only look on in awe and wonder at the selfless work of individuals like David Nott, the British surgeon who has saved lives in most of the world's war zones. We listen in admiration and gratitude to Fr Timothy Radcliffe and Leïla Vignal of the 9.30 Family Mass congregation as they recount their first-hand experiences in Syria and Iraq.

However, even though it is only the fearless few who have been thus perfected in love, it is nonetheless open to the rest of us to help where we can; and we too can make a difference. Every card assembled, every blanket knitted, every pot of jam made or cake baked, every fundraiser organized, every penny donated, and every prayer offered – each of these expressions of love and compassion has a transformative potential. This year, thanks to the continuing generosity of the 9.30 Family Mass congregation and of BOAT's many other supporters, BOAT received £44,263 from donations and events; this is £7,319 more than in 2015. This phenomenal sum has been put to good use by the heroic and dedicated people who feature in this report: from Fr Rogério Mendes in Brazil (helping to give slum children a brighter future), to Fr Jeya in Zimbabwe (improving the lot of disabled children).

The response to the Lenten Appeal 2016 was overwhelming. Thanks to you, BOAT was able to send £5,190 to the Syrian-run NGO, Sonbola, to fund their work to ensure that Syrian refugee children continue to receive an education – work which makes a difference now, and which will make a difference in the future.

The card-recycling team continue to produce beautiful cards which spread the BOAT name far and wide. This year they raised £893 for BOAT – thank you to Anna Baidoun, Joshua and Jenifer Dubin, Gill Emerson, Ag MacKeith, and Yvonne Miskin, as well as to all those who have taken card “kits” home. Although Una and Andrea Goble no longer keep bees, they have been selling pots from their store-room, and have raised £300 this year for BOAT. Gayna Wiles, BOAT resident artist, has put up a special bee-themed display in the narthex to mark the Goble family's loyal and much-appreciated support of BOAT.

Another family who have been unstintingly supportive of BOAT is the Brassington family. I would ask you to remember Raymond Brassington, a much-loved member of the 9.30 Family Mass congregation in your prayers; and we thank his friends and family for the extremely generous collection which was made at his funeral, in aid of BOAT.

As always, I would like to thank all the Committee; in particular, John Thanassoulis who, as Treasurer, continues to manage BOAT's finances extremely efficiently; also, Filomena Nave who has again done invaluable work claiming Gift Aid (£6,950 this year). Lucy Carpenter has once more been a great support as BOAT Secretary. A big thank you is also due to BOAT

Editor, Ag MacKeith, for the handsome report you see before you. Finally, warm thanks to Jane MacKay who has very willingly given of her time and expertise in examining our accounts.

BOAT's Public Benefit

All charities, including smaller ones like ours, are required to report on the “public benefit” they bring through their activities, and to describe how they have achieved their objectives.

Our purpose

Under our constitution as a registered charity, the purposes of BOAT are to “provide support for the charitable activities of Christian parishes, organisations or societies, situated or working outside Europe, the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, in (i) the relief of poverty, and (ii) the advancement of education”. Everyone attending Mass at Blackfriars or giving to BOAT on a regular basis is regarded as a member of the Trust. The formal Trustees are a committee of ten people, elected each year at our Annual General Meeting. A representative from the Dominican community – Br Samuel Burke since January 2015 – also sits on the committee, as a link to the Priory which is home to BOAT.

The benefit we bring

We have paid due regard to the Charity Commission's public benefit guidance. Under our Principles for Giving, updated at our AGM in 2007, we have a very clear set of criteria for the projects we support and for assessing the public benefit that support will bring. On the key principle that we want our funding really to “make a difference” we aim to support relatively small-scale or grass-roots projects with regular grants (£2,100 in 2016). Some funding will be one-off but more often a project will be funded for three years and then considered for renewal on a rolling basis.

We always look for projects with some link to the 9.30 Family Mass congregation or the Dominican order; although most have Catholic leadership, that is not a requirement, and we don't fund any form of proselytizing. We make sure that there is regular personal contact, partly so that we can identify priorities and needs quickly, but also so that we can help the congregation's understanding of the challenges in developing countries. We aim to help communities find long-term solutions to their needs, rather than short-term fixes although, from time to time, we do give money to help with emergencies. As you read through this report, you will see that our projects fall broadly into three areas:

Health: especially primary health care and preventive medicine;

Welfare: especially for children, people with disabilities, refugees, and victims of war or poverty;

Education: particularly practical skills, women's education, and the provision of basic educational needs for children.

We are always looking for good projects to support on a one-off or regular basis. This is your charity, so please tell us if you know of a project which satisfies BOAT's criteria. And thank you, as always, for making a difference.

São Paulo da Cruz, Calvário Church

BOAT has been supporting the Serviço Social e Promocional São Paulo da Cruz (SSPSPC), a centre for 120 school-aged children and teenagers from low-income families, since 2005. The SSPSPC, based on the premises of the Calvário Church offers social and educational activities and complements state school education. It helps the parents too, as in the evening the premises are used for adult literacy courses that are attended by family members. There are regular talks and workshops for the families who are encouraged to participate in the development of their children. What I find unique about this project is the support it gives to teenagers, as the ones in the photo of the sport's team, above. It doesn't just keep them off the streets, it gives them skills that will be useful in their adult life. The children who go to this day-centre, have a real opportunity to complete school education and to break with poverty. Recently, a few of them have gone to university.

We get our information about the project from regular letters from Father Rogério Mendes (President of SSPSPC). In his last letter, he told us that BOAT's help makes an important contribution to the upkeep of this children's centre. He enclosed some nice photos from SSPSPC 30th year anniversary. The photo on the right, for instance, shows the young trainee chefs preparing to bake the 30th anniversary birthday cake.

ARCH, Dibanda

The Associated Rehabilitation Centre for the Handicapped (ARCH) is located in Dibanda, South West Cameroon and aims to meet the physical needs of disabled people by providing rehabilitation and support services for them and their families. Since 2005 we have been in regular contact with Sr Leonarda Tubuo, the physiotherapist who manages a team of well-trained health care and other staff there.

Sr Leonarda tells us that 2016 saw a marked increase in the number of patients coming to the centre, with well over 2,000 patients receiving around five sessions of therapy from the carers. In particular, she says that this year they saw many more children. “Some days the therapists treat 25 which is really too much, as you know children are a bit of a handful especially with strangers... The adults are increasing in the same manner but this is expected since, as I always tell you, we are getting better known, day by day... It remains a challenge to satisfy their needs with our limited resources. For example, we make prostheses for amputees but often they complain, especially the older people, that it is heavy. We do not have the technology to make it lighter but we would really love to do this for them.”

As well as health carers, ARCH also has a workshop staffed by shoemakers, welders and carpenters. After therapy, some of the adult patients stay on to train as sheltered workers. As always, Sr Leonarda’s words bring the special challenges of life among the disabled community very much to life: “One trainee is a man of about 47 who was involved in an accident that ended up with an amputation... A group of blind people, whom he assists in the taking of minutes during their meetings, helped him benefit from a small grant. We are now training him for shoe making.” Workshop activities at ARCH include the making of prostheses, insoles for flat feet, and other adaptations for persons living with disabilities.

In 2014, BOAT agreed to continue support for ARCH by helping set up its new poultry project. After some initial problems in getting started, Sr Leonarda recently sent us some very good news about this. Thanks to a scholarship from the Asian Rural Institute in Japan, a staff member was given nine months’ training in organic farming and is now capable of preparing the chicken feed using local suppliers. Sr Leonarda was pleased to send us a photograph of the farmer with young chicks and hens inside the newly built new henhouse. She goes on to tell us that “it is hoped that in future years, this farm will have extended to about a thousand chickens and a piggery. Our farmer was very fortunate to learn some few but very good natural antidotes to bird flu and swine flu so I have confidence she will help us through. We feed our chickens at half the price because of her resourcefulness and she is succeeding in an organic way to make the difference. In our whole area of more than 40,000 people, egg farmers are rare (I don’t know any). Sellers go far to get eggs and we think with all our lady farmer has learnt, we will make a good yield and it will be good for the centre. If all goes well, it is hoped that the farm produce will be sold to increase income for the repairs of the centre.”

Zizencho and Arekit

Both schools, in Zizencho and Arekit, are run with great dedication and talent by the Bethany Sisters. The main objective of the schools is to offer quality education and to build a better future for local children. In the late assessments made by the Ministry of Education both of these schools ranked as the best in the area. As a result, everybody wants to send their children there, but capacity is limited. More classrooms would be needed to satisfy all requests.

Zizencho: The Zizencho school is well established for both kindergarten, primary and junior secondary school up to the eighth grade. It has a total of 568 students and a staff of 17 teachers. The local authorities and population are now requesting to upgrade the school to tenth grade because children must walk up to ten kilometres to attend the nearest state school that offers ninth and tenth grades. With four more classrooms this request could be satisfied.

The Bethany Sisters also run a clinic in Zizencho providing for all the basic treatment needed by the children and safe maternity services for the local population. A grinding mill is now being built because currently women have to walk to Arekit to process their grain.

Arekit: The Arekit school has 420 students from kindergarten to 4th grade and a staff of ten teachers (see photo). The kindergarten is now at full capacity. A fifth grade has opened this year and the government has authorized the school to work up to eighth grade. The kindergarten still needs more classrooms and some equipment to offer children some variety of games during the break.

About 80% of the pupils in both schools come from extremely poor families and, since there is no electricity, children have to read in front of a kerosene lamp or wood fire at night.

Neither the schools nor the clinic make any distinction on the basis of religion or language, everybody is welcome. For example, 97% of students are Christian Orthodox, Muslim and Protestant.

Yearly expenses are growing and there are problems with teacher retention because the government has increased the salary of state-funded teachers by 60%, promised to meet transport and housing expenses, provide them with higher study opportunities, etc.

The Bethany Sisters and both communities are very thankful for the quality of education and the available facilities supported financially by BOAT and the Jean Grove Trust.

Grand Anse

The School Feeding Programme at the Blessed Sacrament Roman Catholic School in Grand Anse, Grenada, provides a substantial meal for children for whom, all too often, it is the main meal of the day. Of the 253 pupils, 120 eat the dinners provided, a number which is growing, thanks in part to the continued financial assistance from BOAT and from the Church. The school is in an impoverished area of Grand Anse, and many of the children live in struggling households. They come to school hungry and find it hard to concentrate. High rates of absenteeism are the result. As well as providing a much needed and regular source of nutrition for children who would otherwise go hungry, the meals enable them to concentrate in class and are a strong incentive for parents to send them to school and keep them there. For the poorest families, the programme ensures the children's food security in times of crisis. The wider community has enthusiastically joined in with cooking for special occasions and the programme has been reaching out to parents with new ideas for food the children will find both nutritious and tasty. A further consequence of BOAT's support has been the long overdue renovation of the kitchen facilities, adding cookers and a standing refrigerator.

Fr David Sanders, from the Blackfriars community, recently visited the school. He was impressed by the headmaster's keen interest in making sure that the children's needs are being properly met. While he was there, Fr David spoke to two children who had just joined the programme. They came from a single-parent family, where the father was struggling to provide adequate food and clothing. One of the teachers has taken them under her wing and makes sure they receive a warm school meal every day. In fact, she goes even further, and has been known to wash and iron the children's clothing!

At a cost of $1 per meal, the contribution that BOAT provides goes far. The headmaster and the children send their warmest appreciation for the support BOAT continues to give.

India

Sugandh Society

The catchphrase for the Sugandh charity is 'lives transformed through empowerment and education', which captures key aspects of the group's important work amongst some of the poorest members of Indian society. The organisation, which is now in its twentieth year, is based in the slums of New Delhi. It runs a number of tutoring courses for children of migrant workers, most of whom are waste-pickers, rickshaw drivers and casual labourers. It also seeks to empower families to obtain access to government benefits (for example, free children's education) that they are entitled to, but due to illiteracy and lack of knowledge about administrative processes, that they are often unfairly denied. A third important focus is on the self-help groups organised by the charity aimed at women that allow them to pool savings and take out loans at very low interest rates in order to fund small-scale business and craft enterprises, fund children's education, buy plots of land or build sturdy houses, often after forced clearings of slums by government officials.

Sugandh runs two centres focused on tutoring and more general child development initiatives. The centre in Madanpur Khadar charges a nominal fee of 30 rupees per month (about 30p) in order to ensure parents are committed to the programme but children then receive tuition, uniforms, shoes, stationery, school bags, a mid-day snack and other essential items free of charge (photo shows children getting kitted out).

Last year, the centre admitted 58 children between the ages of six and 14 and provided tuition to bring them up to the same level as their more well-to-do peers. At Sugandh's Holambi Kalan Centre, 69 children of high-school age received more advanced tuition to prepare them for the all-important Board exams. While about two-thirds of the children at the local government school did not pass these exams, all those receiving tuition from Sugandh passed their Class 9 and 11 exams. Sugandh is currently working with other advocacy groups to try to raise the standard of education for all the children in the local school, not just those attending the charity's programmes. Sugandh's staff also provide personal attention to and seek to build long-term relationships with the local community. The impact of such an approach can be seen in the case of Ayesha, the daughter of a casual labourer working in a Gulf country. Thanks to repeated home visits, Sugandh's staff persuaded Ayesha to continue her education and then helped her hone her study skills. The result was that Ayesha passed her Class 11 exams with an impressive mark of 90.8% and she is now planning to become a teacher.

Another aspect of Sugandh's mission is to empower slum dwellers to access benefits to which they are entitled and to find ways of helping them to achieve their goals through self-help groups. Last financial year, Sugandh's women's self-help groups had 924 members. A key activity was running a savings scheme designed for slum dwellers who are unable to access traditional banks. Thanks to such a scheme, Supriya Bai, a fifty-year-old widow with six children, was able to save enough money and take out a small loan in order to set up a modest family shop selling eggs (see photo). Namrata was another self-help group beneficiary. She used the savings scheme over five years in order to buy her husband a rickshaw, thereby providing her family, which includes three children, with a steady income. An example of Sugandh helping slum dwellers access benefits is ten-year-old Rahul, a promising student who had been turned away from the local government school due to a mistake on his birth certificate. Thanks to Sugandh's assistance, his illiterate parents were able to have the document corrected and Rahul could rejoin his class.

If future funding allows, Sugandh hopes to increase the number of girls coming to its tutoring sessions. It would also like to start a new education programme aimed specifically at street children, whose needs are different from those of children of low-paid, but employed parents who have been the focus of Sugandh's educational work thus far. Sugandh recognises the challenges of building new relationships with street children, including having to work with the 'bosses' who oversee the children's activities in the slums. But Sugandh's two decades of success in improving the education, well-being and dignity of slum dwellers suggest that the charity is well placed to undertake such new initiatives, thanks to the on-going support of BOAT and a small number of other charities.

Nicaragua

El Platanal

El Platanal is a rural school, seven kilometres north-west of Leon. All the primary grades are covered, plus a nursery class and two classes for mixed age groups. Our project, which we share with Oxford's Leon Link's own Nicaragua Education Culture and Arts Trust (NECAT), is similar to Grand Anse in that it aims to improve the children's diet by adding variety to the staples of rice and beans, and thus to keep them in school. At the same time it teaches the basics of food hygiene, relies on the help of the parents (especially the mothers), and encourages a feeling of solidarity throughout the school.

This is how they described their work last year.

Benefits of the project:

- We attended to a total of 95 children and improved their nutritional level.
- We achieved 90.5% school retention which contributed to preventing child labour.

- We achieved 100% academic success by children which means that they all matriculated and proceeded to the next higher year group.
- There was 95% daily attendance and punctuality from the children.
- We involved the families of the children in the life and work of the school, since they are the ones who prepare the food every day.

We began the academic year with 95 children, 54 boys and 41 girls, attended to by four teachers. Amongst these children we soon found problems with 12 of the children because their parents had left the community. During the second term the parents who had left withdrew their children from the school. As a result we finished the year by attending to 86 children (90.5% of the original intake). The withdrawals were due to the families moving away to find work in order to improve their economic income. Some of those families went to Costa Rica, others left for the capital city.

As a result of the school nutrition programme we observed an improvement in health and nutrition. We also noticed that the children were making better efforts in the classroom and achieving academic success, we noticed that they were getting along better together, learning new values and in the end achieving a 100% pass rate. It should be pointed out that 80% of the families are dysfunctional, with the mother being in charge of the home

As a contribution of the school to the school nutrition project we encouraged the children to care for the school garden. For the gardening the care rota was divided between 8 boys and 11 girls who were responsible for maintenance and care of the garden on the basis of a rota that they established themselves. The plants cultivated and harvested in the garden included tomatoes, sweet peppers, spinach and spicy peppers, amongst others.

Some 13 mothers were involved in preparing the food for the school meals. Typically the rota ensures that on any particular day three of the mothers are there at the school preparing the food. They say they are grateful to BOAT for the support it provides for the meal and that it helps the children feel motivated for their studies.

In the process of the school meal we apply norms of hygiene, washing hands before and after eating, washing the plates and looking after the food, keeping it covered and away from the flies and cockroaches. The dining room, tables and place where the children eat are always kept clean.

The children say that a rich meal is made in their school and the mothers say that their children are healthier and better fed, that the Project is helping them in the family economy and they hope that in 2017 they continue supporting with their children's breakfast.

Difficulties: In comparison with 2015 when there was 100% school retention in 2016 it was 90.5% due to the emigration of families who left in search of work.

Expectations: To continue with the school nutrition project in 2017.

Thank you BOAT for so many years of guaranteeing our school meals. Gracias BOAT .”

Women in Struggle (WIS)

Women in Struggle (WIS) is an organisation based in Faisalabad which exists to empower women at the grassroots level, and to promote participatory sustainable development. They strive to improve the domestic conditions of poor women by providing them with sources of income and to promote education in poor, rural areas. The WIS team, consisting mainly of schoolteachers, works entirely voluntarily to run their local activities for long-term outcomes.

This year BOAT supported WIS by supplying school children with essentials like clothes, pens and pencils as well as a cool air facility to ensure that classes can continue in the sweltering summer temperatures. WIS held a special Christmas Lunch for children and also held a youth empowerment camp in the Swat Valley through the support of BOAT. Funds have been spent on helping a family suffering from the effects of tuberculosis in Francisabad, including the building of a roof and a toilet at their home.

WIS continued in its long-term agricultural projects, providing crops for women to gain economic independence, including orange trees: 200 plants were donated to 50 women. They also continue to care for orphaned children, one of whom is now attending college in Kaynat. All of these activities were made possible through the financial support of BOAT.

Having taken the reins last year, Lubna Ghani continues to run the project with diligence and keeps in regular contact with BOAT, sending photographs and reports of their work. They send their thanks and offer their prayers for BOAT's benefactors.

Lima: San Benito Township

We were delighted that Fr Ed O’Connell, who leads the Warmi Huasi project in his parish in Lima, was able to visit us at Blackfriars in August 2016. He was over here to see family and friends, and came along to the 9.30 to give a talk after the Mass about his work in San Benito Township. Despite being the Bank Holiday weekend, it was very well attended and much appreciated.

Fr Ed talked and showed videos of the work going on in the community. The township is rocky and often muddy and lacks basic amenities (proper roads, lighting, pavements). Many of the children are at the mercy of violence and bullying while their parents are at work or struggling with day-to-day life. Warmi Huasi provides a safe space for the children to learn, to play and simply to be children. There are three homework clubs, a toy library and play centre, a monthly play day, a monthly Warmi Cine day and a very popular reading club in Warmi Huasi centre. New reading clubs in the local State primary and secondary schools are well attended, reaching over 3,000 children, many of whom would otherwise be at risk.

In 2015, the children formed a Children’s Commission called “Children of San Benito in action” which is now working with the local council and the adults in the township to make a number of public places safer for them to play in, so they can move around without being molested, especially the girls. One of the most moving of Fr Ed’s videos (“I have rights too”) shows children talking about their experiences of bullying and violence, at home and in the streets. “Very few people respect the rights of children,” one says. Another describes the experience of having their football stolen in the playground and cut in half, and many talk about the violence they have seen. “Parents hurt children as well, mothers, fathers, their own brothers.” They describe how the streets are full of “trash, pickpockets and drug addicts.”

Warmi Huasi is a haven for these children. “It’s safe there, and we get explanations.” “You can have fun, and read ... there are lots of books and teachers who tell you what to look for.”

The project works with parents too, and one of the children on the video says, “I like that my parents don’t fight anymore...” On Monthly Play Day, we see children enjoying very traditional childhood games – spinning tops, marbles, hula hoops, sack races, and playing at kitchens. (“I even play with my sisters” says one little boy!) It is a privilege to be able to support Fr Ed and his work, and help give the children of San Benito a happy childhood and prospects for their future. Perhaps one day some of them will be the leaders of Peru!

Midsalip, Missionary Sisters of St Columban

BOAT supports the Subaanen Mission in Midsalip, the Philippines, under the inspirational leadership of Sister Kathleen Melia of the Sisters of Saint Columban. This Mission assists the indigenous Subaanen people in accessing health care and education and in protecting their ancestral homeland.

This year, more than 70 elementary school and seven high school students were beneficiaries of BOAT funding for their education and to help pay for school supplies. Most of the elementary students walk two hours each way over difficult terrain just to get to school. The fact that they have adequate footwear and clothing, as well as school supplies and food, allows these children to persevere in school despite the many obstacles facing them and their families. Letecia, a former BOAT scholar, has not just persevered, but has thrived and is now a teacher at one of the schools run by the Mission. After graduating from College, Letecia taught for a number of years in the pre-school and is now teaching grades one and two. She is one of five teachers in Midsalip pioneering culture-based education in the native Subaanen language.

BOAT scholars this year include brother and sister, Wislie and Jane. Jane is profoundly deaf and as a result, did not continue school in her barrio. Her brother also dropped out of school, primarily due to a lack of food. Both children now live in the centre run by the Mission and are attending school, including a special education class for Jane that has enabled her to improve her communication skills.

In addition to education, the Mission also assists parents to register marriages and births so they can take advantage of government programmes which help the poor to access free hospitalization and education.

Environmental issues are also at the fore of the Mission. For example, the Mission has helped local communities take legal action against people who burn down the forest to plant corn. The Mission also encourages parents and older students to assist in the a tree-planting programme. Banyan trees are grown to stabilize the ground and prevent landslides triggered by the rainy season.

Sister Kathleen writes “Warmest greetings from Midsalip to each of you members of BOAT, and our very sincere thanks for your wonderful generosity to our mission here. Thanks to each of you for accompanying us in our mission through your prayers, sacrifices and support. We pray God’s blessings on each of you and your families”.

Sri Lanka

Child Development Initiative (CDI) Vavuniya

Sister Nichola Emmanuel continues to be a resolute and compassionate fighter for the Tamil women and children in northern Sri Lanka, whose lives were shattered by the civil war, and who continue to be the victims of poverty and abuse. The aims of the CDI are moving ones: to create a better and peaceful society for the traumatized and war-affected, specially children and women, so that they can live with dignity as human beings and children of God in the post-war context.

Sr Nichola paints a vivid picture of the challenge: “The war stole men and boys from their mothers and wives, and today nearly 90,000 female-headed households (FHH) struggle to meet their daily dietary and other requirements, whilst facing harassment from all sides. The women face social discrimination, harassment from security forces and are forced to bring up their children without proper housing and security. Their lives are a daily struggle, to say the least, and their mental conditions are no better. These conditions have created a group of victims whose need for counselling and care is a matter of priority if Sri Lanka is to adopt reconciliation and peace more fully.”

The CDI, which also receives funding from two other UK charities and from an NGO in Australia, provides a variety of help and support to the families, including direct financial support to individuals, and the provision of day-to-day essentials like stationery for the children at school. BOAT funds support the central office which co-ordinates these programmes. Floods in the area in May 2016 produced a generous response, with direct relief being distributed to 100 families.

BOAT money also helps the victims of sexual or domestic abuse, through a service provided at the local hospital. Sr Nichola writes: “When cases of child abuse and domestic violence are brought to Vavuniya hospital, CDI lends a helping hand by assisting for medical and immediate relief of the victim. Twenty-six girls who were sexually abused and raped were assisted during the year, for immediate and medical relief. A number of women who underwent domestic violence and [were] brought to GBV desk have been assisted with immediate relief.”

So the CDI is playing an important role in creating a brighter future for the women and their children, whose lives continue to be blighted by violence and poverty. As Sr Nichola wrote when we first began to support the Initiative: “I hope soon the day will dawn when they will stand on their own feet, in their own homes, and live as human beings and children of God with dignity and freedom”. We share the same hope.

Tanzania

Livingstone Trust

Livingstone Tanzania Trust is a grassroots development charity operating in Babati, northern Tanzania, which we have supported for a number of years. The focus is on improving education and supporting enterprise initiatives that are environmentally sensitive and sustainable. LTT has two programmes: the Education Programme, addressing the specific needs of individual schools; and the Enterprise Programme, empowering communities by providing resources and training to enhance their skills and build on their existing knowledge.

In 2016, the funds provided by BOAT were concentrated on the School Enterprise Programme at Managhat Primary School, 10km from Babati in the countryside to the east of Lake Babati. LTT has been working with the school since 2012, and a need was identified to improve their vegetable garden project, which had been operating for some time with varying success: poor rains, poor water security and livestock intrusion made it a challenge to get the best from it. Our grant helped towards setting up a market garden for the school which could be used to train young people to run a business of growing vegetables. This has now been successfully established, engaging the students and providing food to sell.

The tangible achievements of the project have been:

- Infrastructure: water security through the provision of borehole well, pump and gravity-fed irrigation system; cost-effective lockable wire fencing to prevent incursions by livestock; manure from the garden's cows is returned to the biogas digester, making energy to cook school meals; former water stands have now been converted to a chicken coop.
- Teacher Training: the teacher responsible for the garden has received local training from an agricultural officer employed by LTT's local delivery partner, and attended a 4-day training course run by an NGO 200km away. Given autonomy to develop the garden, the teacher's greatest success was his initiative to introduce a vertical growing system for the tomato crop.
- Student engagement: all the children in Standard 6 (12–13 year-olds) played a part, regardless of gender, recording costs and income, building and tending the garden (including the rotas for weekend watering), harvesting and selling (including the establishment of a trading name and sales materials). They devised a handover ceremony to the next Standard 6 pupils, offering suggestions to improve the way the garden is run. Critical thinking is unusual in Tanzanian schools where much learning is by rote and asking questions is not encouraged, but this project required the students to analyse their successes and failures, especially with regard to market research, and to take part in face-to-face discussions with LTT about improving the garden's success through concrete proposals driven by mature reflection on the past year's progress.

- Unintended (positive) outcomes: excess vegetables were given free to the school to supplement the school meals, rather than persevering with selling them for little return when demand was low.
- Accounts and forward planning: the pupils kept accounts (in parallel with the head teacher), learning book-keeping and other enterprise skills. The project earned real income, and in the coming year most of the income will be ploughed back into the garden's development.
- Impact: The school was emboldened to enter the School Challenge, run by Teach a Man to Fish, even though most of the entries were from secondary schools. They won a monthly photo competition, although no big prizes – but the real impact was engagement with the wider world, a big step for children from this small rural community. All 48 pupils in the year are growing vegetables at home, inspiring family and neighbours to do the same – and employing the cultivation lessons learnt at school. The pupils now have the skills to begin small-scale enterprises of their own.
- Future plans: these include working closely with the local Community Agricultural Support Office, re-starting fish farming, farming chickens to diversify the project, developing the compost system, and introducing shade netting. The total budget identified for the improvement of the garden is £3,510.

Our contact with LTT is Julian Page, who is based in London but is often in Tanzania, actively involved with all LTT's projects.

Uganda

Cancer Trust

In 2015 we were put in touch with the Uganda Cancer Trust UK (UCT) by members of the 9.30 congregation. We met two of their trustees, Dr. Michael Minton (retired Oxford Palliative Medicine Consultant) and Liz Minton (Head of Oxford's 'Maggie's Oxford Information and Support Centre' at the Churchill Hospital). They outlined the main palliative care goals of the UCT and the development of a local volunteer group whose programme was to enable more people with cancer to access good quality information and support about cancer and the care, services and treatment available.

The BOAT committee gave their support to this work and committed three years funding to the development of the Palliative Care Programme and the support of an information nurse to develop further information tools. In December 2016 the Mintons visited the volunteer team (in the photo) at the Makerere Palliative Care Unit in Uganda to see the progress being made.

They saw first-hand the difficulties being faced by patients, medical staff and volunteers while the Mulago Hospital is being redeveloped, and the dire effect on the patients of the loss of Uganda's only radiotherapy machine for treating cancer patients, which broke down beyond repair last year. This left thousands unable to get potentially life-saving treatment. Mulago Hospital gets 44,000 new referrals a year, from Uganda as well as from neighbouring Rwanda, Burundi and South Sudan and 75% of these may require radiotherapy. The machine at Mulago Hospital was second-hand when it was donated in 1995 and has been repaired several times in the past, but efforts to fix it this time have failed.

The Palliative Care Team are adjusting to these new realities and Liz and Michael are keen to help and support them in any way they can to provide a continuing service to the cancer patients and their carers. The Palliative Care Nurse, supported by BOAT, with help from the staff from the American Cancer Society, has been developing and providing leaflets to support the cancer patients and their families. These information leaflets support patients such as Bob and Immaculate; the following is a summary of their stories demonstrating the work BOAT is supporting through the volunteer palliative care team.

Bob's story Nineteen year old Bob wants to study to become an accountant to support his mother and siblings. His plans have been put on hold while he receives treatment for melanoma of the eye. The Palliative Care Team have befriended him and were present when the medical team were discussing his management plan; they are now helping him to adjust to his future.

Immaculate's story Last June, Nurse Florence from the Makerere Palliative Care Unit, whilst in S.W. Uganda carrying out mentoring, met 22 year old Immaculate who had been diagnosed with HIV/AIDS and a mouth cancer called Kaposi's sarcoma. Immaculate was receiving treatment for the AIDS virus but there was no treatment for her cancer. Nurse Florence organised for her to be transported to the Uganda Cancer Institute in Kampala where she was able to get chemotherapy.

Kasambya Catholic Parish, Mubende

In 2016 Father Sebastian, who is a great initiator of projects and an inspiring executor of them, was moved by the bishop to a new parish to start a programme of improvements. His work in Kasambya was taken over by Father Augustine Norris Mirinda, who carried out the third and final year of the project which BOAT was supporting. Father Augustine completed the boys' and girls' dormitory project. He had the building finished and painted and installed the beds in the dormitories. He has sent his financial report and expresses his gratitude to all those who donated to BOAT to make the completion of the project possible.

Karungu Convent, Kigumba

Because of the severity of the malaria crisis, Sister Clemensia initiated a project to provide mosquito nets for mothers and families, especially those with young children. They were able to purchase 250 mosquito nets to distribute. They were also able to treat all the old mosquito nets, so that they could be re-used. They were able to buy medicines to treat the poorest children who were suffering from pneumonia and malaria and to stock their health unit with quinine injectables, coarterm and arthernem. She thanks BOAT and the 9.30 congregation for the enormous difference that the grant has made to the work done by her order, the Little Sisters of Mary, to save lives and improve the health of the community they serve.

African Mission

African Mission is a London-based charity working primarily in Uganda and Zimbabwe. Initially it revolved around Dr Ray Towey, a consultant anaesthetist who has worked in African hospitals and clinics for over two decades. More recently African Mission has expanded its remit into education. BOAT has been supporting it since 2011, funding maintenance and construction and helping children and staff at a number of schools in Fatima Mission, a large Franciscan-run mission in Zimbabwe.

The £2,100 that BOAT sent in July 2016 was used for a new project, set up by Fr Jeya, one of the priests who works within Fatima mission (see photo). In a desperately poor region, where expectations are low and there are very few facilities for the disabled, African Mission is playing a vital role in offering disabled children access to schools and education. Our grant of £2100 covered the fees and living costs for one term for a group of fourteen boys and girls, who range in age from 9-17.

In addition to their physical handicaps, several are blind or mute. They live at a church-run pastoral centre and attend a local school. Some have no parents at all, others come from single parent families who could not afford to pay their school fees.

On top of Fatima Mission, African Mission has more recently begun to support St Francis's primary school, another small school in Zimbabwe serving 125 pupils. The plan is to both build new teacher accommodation and upgrade the classrooms. Work has already started but there is much to do.

2016 Lenten Project

We heard of the Sonbola project from Leila Vignal of Oxford's Refugee Studies Centre, and she and Timothy Radcliffe OP filled us in with more detail at a Sunday meeting after mass. It is a Syrian-run NGO in the Bekaa valley in Lebanon that transports 1300 Syrian children to half day sessions in local schools every day. It also runs a day centre, where 192 children are further schooled in English, art, maths and IT, also in half-day sessions. Some go to both kinds of lessons, some are so short of money that they can only go to the day centre, where they are taught for nothing by Syrian teachers and other professionals, working to keep their hand in.

The project is funded by donations and run by a team of Syrian volunteers, and – sign of the times – you can see their heroic efforts first hand on the Sonbola Facebook page. The project goes from strength to strength, as different groups come forward to make it work! In 2016 volunteers ran a summer school, and a bakery was established. Yoga teachers have crossed the world to run classes. Recent entries on their page include a video of three little brothers from Aleppo who started in the Sonbola choir, but have developed a talent as rappers.

The 9.30 congregation rallied round this initiative in a big way. We were able, when all the money including Gift Aid was finally collected, to send them an unprecedented £5,190. This kind of initiative is a precious thing that keeps hope alive. Children will never forget being taught in such circumstances, and will benefit from it for their whole lives. We're lucky to have the chance to have a hand in it.

BOAT Card Recycling 2016

This home industry, set up years ago, continues to recycle Christmas and greetings cards to raise money for BOAT. Our net profits in 2016 were around £1000 (although only £983 had gone into the bank when BOAT's accounts were made up). Our best sellers are always the Fine Art Christmas and greetings cards, but our range is wide, and there are many different styles of cards available singly and in packs. These are on sale at key times after the 9.30 Mass during coffee in the Priory Refectory, and our cards for sale in the Porter's Lodge attract a constant trickle of customers.

We aim to produce cards of a high quality, so we meet weekly throughout the year, over coffee and cake, to sort the cards we receive and make sure they are suitable for recycling, check fine art pictures for attributions, cut them to shape, fold the mounts, and pack them into boxes with glue, ready for our cohort of stickers. When they come back they pass through Quality Control, are sorted into packs with envelopes and stored in the Lodge ready to sell. We could not do this without plenty of help from members of the congregation – especially the original Card Factory founders, Yvonne Miskin and Anna Baidoun. We are grateful to the select band who call in to help us on a Friday, or take home prepared boxes to stick. Nor could we sell so many without the Dye-Dubin's commitment to setting up our stall, and Joshua's humorous adverts for their sale, which stand out among the notices! This year, too, we have Mari Girling to thank for taking the cards to Catholic People's Weeks and other events, Marcus Robbins for our smart new display boxes and Philip Owens for looking after the displays in the Porter's Lodge.

When it comes to the initial sorting of the cards, the more helpers the merrier – we need an eclectic set of tastes to make a wide selection. To some extent we can deduce which cards you like from the ones that sell (or don't sell!), but we would welcome more feedback on what people would like to be able to buy. We are always short of religious cards to recycle outside of Christmas. This year we experimented with packs of Christmas cards for children.

Cards we can't recycle are given to Orinoco, the recycling store, once we have taken off the backs. They pass them on to local schools to use for their projects, and are delighted to receive them!

Finally, Thank You again to everyone who helps us to make and sell these cards.

Reserves policy and risk management

The Trustees' policy is to maintain reserves of approximately £5,000. This was a decision made by the Trustees at a meeting in April 2002, and it remains their policy. This sum is sufficient to meet emergencies, but at the same time ensures that grants are made to beneficiaries without undue delay.

Risk Management

In the light of the Trustees' desire to keep reserves at the relatively small level of £5,000, any surplus cash is held on a bank deposit until needed. The Trustees monitor the level of cash held and would review this policy if the levels of cash held were to increase significantly.

Trustees' responsibilities in relation to the financial statements

Law applicable to charities in England and Wales requires the Trustees to prepare financial statements that give a true and fair view of the state of affairs and the charity's financial activities during the year and of its financial position at the end of the year. In preparing those financial statements, the Trustees are required to:

- Select suitable accounting policies and then apply them consistently;
- Make judgements and estimates that are reasonable and prudent;
- State whether applicable accounting standards and statements of recommended practice have been followed subject to any departures disclosed or explained in the financial statements; and
- Prepare financial statements on the going-concern basis, unless it is inappropriate to presume that the charity will continue its operation.

The Trustees are responsible for keeping accounting records which disclose with reasonable accuracy at any time the financial position of the charity and enable them to ensure that the financial statements comply with the Charities Act 1993. The Trustees are also responsible for safeguarding the assets of the charity, and hence for taking reasonable steps for the prevention and detection of fraud and other irregularities.

Treasurer's Report on the Statement of Financial Activities for the Year ended 31st December 2016

I can once again report that BOAT continues to be a financially healthy charity which, with the thinnest sliver of costs, is able to move money to support health and development projects in some of the most needy parts of the world. Further, I am delighted to say that our level of incomings recovered somewhat after falling during 2015 towards the levels we had received in 2014 and before. This positive movement was in part due to generous new donors coming forward.

You will see in the accounts that our total incoming resources over the year were above £44,000. This is over £7,000 more than we received in the previous year. New charity commission rules on banks affected the pace at which we could send money out during Autumn 2016. This had the effect that the final year's donations have actually gone out during January 2017 and so will be reported in the next year's accounts.

Some notable events during 2016 were:

- Given 2015 was a lean year we were considering reducing the level of support we give to each of our projects. A one-off generous donation from an anonymous donor made up the shortfall in one fell swoop. Thus I am delighted to report that all projects supported received the full £2,100 during 2016.
- The Lenten appeal supported Syrian refugee children in Lebanon. We raised £5,190 for this cause! At the time of writing this has now all been sent to the camps in Lebanon.
- Br Sam raised £1,749.53 to support work with children in Iraq.
- We received £170 support from Our Lady's Abingdon for which we are very grateful.
- We received £250 support from Nanoporetech for which we are very grateful.
- BOAT cards made £893 which BOAT has sent to the needy. We are very grateful indeed for all the hard work of the many volunteers that make this happen.

We remain ever grateful to all of our donors, without whose support none of the projects or good works could be supported. Our costs are minimal: only the electronic money transfer charge at Lloyds Bank, and the cost of printing the AGM report. Otherwise all money raised goes to the projects we support. You have read about these earlier in this report.

Independent Examiner's Report to the Trustees of the Blackfriars Overseas Aid Trust ("the Charity")

I report on the accounts of the charity for the year to 31st December 2016 which are set out on the following pages 25 to 30.

Respective responsibilities of trustees and examiner

The charity's trustees consider that an audit is not required for this year under Section 144(2) of the Charities Act 2011 ("the 2011 Act") and that an Independent Examination is needed.

It is my responsibility to:

- ◆ Examine the accounts (under Section 145 of the 2011 Act);
- ◆ Follow the procedures laid down in the General Directions given by the Charity Commission under section 145(5)(b) of the 2011 Act;
- ◆ State whether particular matters have come to my attention.

Basis of independent examiner's report

My examination was carried out in accordance with the General Directions given by the Charity Commissioners. An examination includes a review of the accounting records kept by the charity and a comparison of the accounts presented with those records. It also includes considerations of any unusual items or disclosures in the accounts, and seeking explanations from you as trustees concerning any such matters. The procedures undertaken do not provide all the evidence that would be required in an audit, and consequently I do not express an audit opinion on the accounts.

Independent examiner's statement

In connection with my examination, no matter has come to my attention:

- (1) which gives me reasonable cause to believe that, in any material respect, the Trustees have not met the requirements to ensure that:
 - ◆ proper accounting records are kept in accordance with Section 130 of the 2011 Act: and
 - ◆ accounts are prepared which agree with the accounting records and comply with the accounting requirements of the 2011 Act: or
- (2) to which, in my opinion, attention should be drawn in order to enable a proper understanding of the accounts to be reached.

Notes forming part of the financial statements for the year ended 31st December 2016

1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

General

The financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost convention and in accordance with the Statement of Recommended Practice, Accounting and Reporting by Charities (SORP 2005) issued in 2005.

a) Income

1. Donations and grants are included in the accounts when they are received.
2. Interest income is included in the accounts when it is received.
3. Tax recoverable in respect of Gift Aid donations is included in the accounts when it is received.

b) Expenditure

All grants to partner organisations and other expenditure are included in the accounts in the year they are paid.

c) Unrestricted Funds

Unrestricted funds are donations and other incoming resources received for the objects of the charity without a specified purpose and are available as general funds. From time to time the Trustees may establish Designated Funds out of the Unrestricted Funds to meet contingencies.

d) Restricted Funds

Restricted funds are to be used for specific purposes as laid down by the donor. Expenditure which meets these criteria is charged to the fund, together with a fair allocation of management and support costs.
