

NEW ALBANY
constantly challenges itself to think smarter, greener and healthier. The enduring values of this vibrant city are brought to life through a master plan that reflects its commitment to education, wellness, culture and leisure.

From its pedestrian-friendly town center to farmers markets, everything about New Albany is designed to foster an enduring sense of community. Anchored by a library, restaurants and boutiques, Market Square's growing mix of amenities attracts both residents and employees.

At Market Square, the Philip Heit Center for Healthy New Albany offers a highly personalized approach to wellness that revolves around medical, fitness, social and educational services. Its partners, including two of the country's leading healthcare institutions, share a vision to make New Albany the healthiest community in America.

Across the street, New Albany's nationally ranked school system is situated on a 200-acre learning campus. The McCoy Center for the Arts, which shares the school campus, hosts a remarkable array of cultural events, from concerts by internationally renowned musicians to lectures by world leaders.

Another example of smarter planning, the New Albany International Business Park has achieved unprecedented growth as a result of public-private partnerships and efficient, responsive city services. The largest master planned business park in Ohio features clusters that connect companies in personal care and beauty, information and technology, corporate offices and R&D and healthcare to stimulate collaboration and innovation.

Inspired by a commitment to promote a culture of wellness, Healthy New Albany encourages healthful living through community activities, events and personalized wellness and prevention programs. The not-for-profit organization, initiated by community volunteers and aligned with world-class partners, leads community health programming at the Philip Heit Center for Healthy New Albany and cultivates a wide variety of healthy living activities, including the New Albany Walking Classic, New Albany Farmers Market, New Albany Community Garden, New Albany Lecture Series, New Albany Walking Club and Healthy New Albany magazine.
