DEMOLITION
AND EXCAVATION

John William Ross

A year at the helm of Ross Demolition has seen remarkable growth, manifesting itself within the expansion of our plant fleet, as well as the substantial enlargement of our footprint within the construction industry, both locally and internationally, extending our operations to include the Free State, South Africa and Auckland, New Zealand respectively.

There is optimism for the year ahead, with the focus remaining upon our crushing production quantities and maintaining the cemented relationships with both our crushing and recycling partners.

We take pride in our esteemed and well-oiled Ross Second Hand Divisions, which form one of the many crucial components of our foundation for reusing and recycling large quantities of demolition material and earth, generated within each project site. Ross Demolition shall persevere to improve our 96% recycling tradition throughout 2015.

We've expanded our asbestos disposal division substantially, noted to have grown in 2014, to become the class leader.

Ross Demolition will be blasting into the new year, with the first of many prestigious projects to commence within February 2015. A twelve storey product of the 1980's, dormant within the central hub of Cape Town shall be imploded, making room for another city landmark. We are expecting a successful outcome, that will continue to resonate the excellence of our family legacy, throughout Africa and beyond.

I'd like to thank the Ross Demolition personnel for being so resilient and I am proud of their committed work ethic.
