

IOSH Managing Safely v5.0

Health and safety is a fundamental aspect of a manager's role in today's working environment. Our IOSH Managing Safely course is a three-day course designed for managers and supervisors, providing them with an appropriate knowledge of health and safety, allowing them to carry out their jobs effectively. The course is very interactive and there are lots of practical examples, making the course interesting and relevant.

Who will benefit?

Managing Safely is a three-day course. It is non-industry specific and is suitable for any managers and supervisors, bringing them up-to-speed with current health and safety requirements, helping them manage their legal responsibilities and guiding them through day-to-day aspects of safety management.

Course Content

Module 1 – Introduction and overview

Covering the moral, legal and financial reasons for managing safely and managers' responsibility and accountability in the workplace

Module 2 – Assessing risks

How to identify hazards and carry out a risk assessment. Determining and implement control measures, looking at accident prevention and occupational ill health. Delegates will carry out a risk assessment exercise.

Module 3 – Controlling risks

Evaluating risk and looking at the hierarchy of risk control. Understanding what is 'reasonably practicable' and 'residual risk'. Delegates will carry out a risk assessment exercise.

Module 4 – Understanding responsibilities

Looking at safety legislation, how it affects decisions in the work place and how our legal system works. Understanding why leadership is an essential part of health and safety management.

Module 5 – Common hazards

Identifying common hazards in the work place.

Module 6 – Investigating accidents and incidents

Identifying why accidents happen and how they should be investigated.

Module 7 – Measuring performance

Preparing basic performance indicators for monitoring and safety improvement and understanding the audit process.

Certification

Delegates who attend the course and successfully complete the written and practical assessments, will receive an IOSH Managing Safely Certificate.
