

White Japonais, aka White Crystal – a cost-effective alternative to White Marble & White Quartz

This white architectural stone is a versatile material for interior design and architecture. It has excellent visual and technical characteristics. It is absolutely white (similar to top grade Thassos marble, a high end white marble), harder than granite, and low maintenance.

Due to its excellent technical characteristics, it is suitable for a variety of applications, including floors, walls, steps, worktops, countertops, vanity topes, swimming pools, column cladding, etc.

It comes in two finishes, honed and polished.

Flooring, penthouse, Central London

Stairs, steps and risers, Central London

White marble is highly popular in modern interiors, which is why this material has been our top seller for a number of years, on both commercial & residential projects. It has been used in bathrooms, for walls, floors and vanity tops, sitting rooms, kitchens, shops, etc.

An extract from technical characteristics for White Japonais:

Specific gravity	2.7
Water absorption	0.02%
Diffusion reflectivity	85%
Radioactivity	No

We have large stocks of this versatile white material in stock in London, both slabs and tiles. Tiles come in various sizes, including 600x600 and 1200x600.
