In an increasingly competitive world, time is becoming your most valuable asset. For many organisations, the monitoring of employees and their working hours remains a vital but labour intensive activity.

Etarmis provides a comprehensive Windows-based time and attendance recording solution that works in conjunction with the sophisticated Series 6 Booking and Access Control terminals, or “virtually” via your pc. It can be used to monitor all forms of working patterns such as:

What is Etarmis?

Etarmis is a time and attendance recording system from the people who invented Flextime®. The system uses booking terminals to record employees arrival and departure bookings; and access control terminals to control entry through doors or car park barriers.

These bookings are then used to calculate time recording and absence information for each employee.

Over the past 40 years, we have developed extensive experience of all working environments. Using this knowledge we have designed Etarmis to be the most flexible time and attendance recording system ever; capable of being programmed to cater for all types of organisations including:
