

Baby Bank

A gift from one local family to another

The Baby Bank provides essential items including nappies, wipes, clothing, pushchairs and nursery items to families in need in Waltham Forest and beyond.

Working like a food bank, we collect and provide new and pre-loved items for newborns to five years olds. The families that we support come to us through referrals from social care, health professionals and other support agencies.

Last year, Baby Bank helped 250 families

Baby Bank is run by The Lloyd Park Children's Charity. Baby Bank has helped hundreds of families in Waltham Forest and beyond. As the cost of raising children rises each year, we want to give every child the best possible start in life.

"Our Baby Bank has the potential to prevent poverty and stress in what should be the most joyful time with a new baby."

Helping local families in need

The Borough of Waltham Forest is ranked in the poorest 10% boroughs nationally and is the 7th most deprived out of London's 33 boroughs. We know that children living in poverty will struggle to reach their full potential. We need your support to help every baby in this borough thrive.

The Baby Bank was set up in 2013 by local parent Paula Vacarey.

"People were, and still are, struggling to cope financially. I thought pre-loved baby items could really help families in need."
