

Ranelagh makes history

Ranelagh Primary School is an outstanding provider of history says the UK Historical Association.

Ranelagh has been awarded Gold status in the History Quality Mark from the Historical Association.

The Quality Mark is an award that recognises the excellence of history provision in schools. Following a rigorous and meticulous analysis of the teaching, learning and provision the school was awarded the highest honour, the prestigious Gold Award.

An assessor spent the day observing lessons and talking to pupils as well as analysing the entire curriculum, concluding that Ranelagh met gold-standard criteria in every single category.

The assessor said: "during observations it was clear that the history curriculum is enjoyed by students and enriches the life of the school in general. Students discussed their learning in history with enthusiasm, and displays of history work were very much in evidence in classrooms, corridors and the tableaus in the main hall."

Humanities Coordinator, Mr Hughes, works tirelessly to ensure that pupils not only enjoy history but acquire the necessary skills and knowledge to comprehend, analyse and critically think about events and people in the past.

The assessor went on to say: "the curriculum planning is meticulous. All subjects including history are carefully mapped out to ensure that they complement each other. At this level, historical concepts and processes are embedded in a series of 'enquiry' questions that have been carefully thought through to provide a wide range of interest and motivation to all children."

NPW Board of Directors

NPW is changing the way it recruits board directors. We are looking to appoint new directors from head teachers, senior school leaders and school governors from Newham maintained schools and academy trusts, based on the skills they can offer to the Board. NPW is owned by schools and exists to deliver excellent support services to our clients. This is a unique chance to be actively part of the next stage of the company's evolution, as well as an opportunity to develop strategic board management skills.

NPW is looking to appoint directors who are innovative and creative thinkers with the ability to work at a strategic level.

The next few years will see increasing change in the way education is delivered in the UK and this is an exceptional opportunity for a committed individual to really make a difference at the same time as growing their own skill set.

More information and application materials can be found at <http://www.npw.uk.com/npwvacancies/>

The closing date for completed application forms is Friday, 9 June 2017.

Please contact Paul Baglee at paul.baglee@npw.uk.com or on 020 8249 6930 if you have any questions.

Message from Newham NQT Primary Partnership Programme

The UCL Institute of Education (IOE) together with three teaching schools in Newham (East London Early Years and School Partnership, Elmhurst Teaching School Alliance and St. Edwards Catholic Teaching School Alliance) have established a strong partnership to provide high quality, evidence-informed CPD for teachers in Newham and beyond.

Research by Stoll et al, (2012) argues that effective professional development connects work-based learning to external expertise such as that held by HEIs. Our programmes are structured and informed by research and innovative local practice to enable teachers to apply their professional learning to their classroom practice to improve outcomes for pupils. Teachers engage in a blend of interactive sessions, reading, reflection and action research, as well as having opportunities to observe learning and teaching and take part in learning walks.

As we move towards the end of our second year working in partnership, it is a good time to reflect on the merits that we have found within this collaborative partnership.

The strength of our NQT and NQT+1 provision draws from the advantages that come from this collaboration. The programmes are co-facilitated by an expert from the IOE and an experienced school leader so that participants can benefit from the complementary knowledge, skills and expertise that both partners can offer. The university-based facilitators bring with them a wealth of understanding of educational research and policy which combines powerfully with the 'frontline' experience of the school leaders and experienced teachers who facilitate with them. In this way, for example, sessions focused on assessment have been able to support new teachers to understand the theories and research that underscores effective formative and summative assessment, and the school based facilitators have been able to elucidate on what this can look like in schools and in the classrooms.

The need for 'external input' into continuing professional development and learning (CPDL) complemented by 'internal specialists' was identified by Coe et al (2015) as a clear finding from their review of evidence on effective professional development for teachers.

The sessions have been based in the excellent training suites at Elmhurst Primary School. Sukwinder Samra, the Director of Elmhurst Teaching School Alliance, has noted the positive impact on professional development both of the participants as well as of the senior leaders facilitating: "Whilst Newham has a long history of successfully inducting new teachers into the profession, the fusion of approaches that is engendered when school leaders and academics work together has been notably impactful. Teachers on the Primary Partnership Programme feel that they are receiving a more thorough grounding in research and theory through the programme, and yet they also report that the content is directly relevant and useful for their day-to-day work in the classroom.

Again, we feel that the success of this approach lies in the effective linking of the complementary fields of academic and professional expertise in education. Senior school leaders facilitating with known experts in a particular field has resulted in improved knowledge and understanding and the payoffs to IOE staff include staying abreast of current school practice."

The NQT and NQT +1 programme is devised as well as delivered in partnership with UCL Institute of Education CoLab and the Teaching Schools and is constantly evolving to respond to participants' needs as well as to address local and national priorities. More successful elements, such as incorporating learning walks, are planned into the programme to strengthen it further.

CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Safety

Following a successful pilot, NPW is pleased to offer extra provision, resource and school staff working with food that are not catering team members an opportunity to achieve the CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Safety Award.

Everyone who works with food (teaching and support staff) has a special safeguarding responsibility to ensure the food they prepare, work with or serve is safe to eat.

Staff will benefit from learning in a classroom environment: meeting their peers and sharing good practice and asking questions directly.

Grainne Sheehy, NPW Client Catering Development Officer, will coach staff on Food Safety. The course content will cover broad concepts of food hazards and how they can be contained and will be assessed by a test paper of 30 multiple choice test questions, culminating in the examination and awarding of the CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Safety. Please note we can also carry out this training at your school/nursery for a minimum of 8 participants.

Differentiation in Mastery

More and more schools are now teaching maths in a 'mastery' context, and often within a mixed ability or partially mixed ability setting. This presents challenges such as the following:

- Teaching all pupils the same programme and ensuring that they all master the concepts
- Managing to extend and deepen learning for all pupils, including more able children
- Support struggling learners within a mixed ability context
- These are some of the pressing issues being faced by Primary Teachers teaching to mastery which will be addressed in this session.

Target audience:

KS1 and KS2 teachers.

Facilitator:

Mohi Uddin is a former Head of Mathematics at a successful secondary school in North West London and also a former Primary Headteacher. He has been an Independent Maths Consultant for over three years and specialises in Singapore Maths.

He works closely with various education based companies, like BBC Bitesize and Maths No Problem, as well as schools all around England.

The London North East Maths Hub's Maths Teacher of the Year Award

Information and nominations

Last year Barking & Dagenham held the Maths Teacher of the Year award ceremony which the Hub were honoured to be involved with, organised by Matt Lewis the advisory teacher for the LA. The London North East Maths Hub thought it was such an excellent idea that we would like to roll it out to our other 6 boroughs since we know there are many fantastic maths teachers across all sectors. The London North East Maths Hub's Maths Teacher of the Year Award ceremony will take place on the 6th July 2017 at Queen Mary University, in conjunction with NCETM.

We would like school/sixth forms/college leaders to nominate one or two outstanding teachers who have gone the extra mile as well as Heads of Department or Maths Coordinators who have made significant and sustained improvements in students' outcomes. Maths leaders should have been in post for at least 2 years and be able to demonstrate a strong track record in terms of improving standards of teaching and learning in mathematics.

We are seeking nominations from schools and colleges in the following Local Authorities: Barking & Dagenham, Newham, Redbridge, Tower Hamlets, Waltham Forest, Hackney and Havering for these categories:

- Early Years
- Primary
- Secondary
- Post-16
- SEND

Teacher of the Year

Please fill in the enclosed nomination form and return it to us by the 31st May 2017. Alternatively, you can nominate online at www.lneastmathshub.org.uk.

Deputy Heads' & Aspiring Deputy Heads' Conference

For Nursery, Primary, Secondary & Special Schools

9th June 2017 from 8:30 – 4:00

at

Chigwell Hall, Chigwell Hall High Road, IG7 6BD

Theme: Getting the best out of people: how to ensure support and challenge is appropriate.

We are in the middle of a recruitment and retention crisis unseen for many years, coupled with ever more challenging circumstances regarding funding. It is therefore ever more important that we maintain standards in teaching, whilst challenging underperformance appropriately. This day will give you the opportunity to reflect upon:

- how to ensure you get the best out of your staff to ensure consistent excellent outcomes for all children
- how you use systems and policies effectively to address underperformance
- how you can benefit from the expert leadership network in East London
- how you lead others in continuing turbulent times

This essential conference for Newham Deputy Headteachers across all phases of education gives you a chance to:

- network and learn alongside other leaders
- hear from high quality keynote speakers
- share best practices and dilemmas

A place funded by the Education Guarantee is available for each Deputy Head in the Borough. There are also a limited number of places available for assistant heads.

EXPERIENCED KS2 TEACHER
(from Sept 2017)

Maryland Primary School is a vibrant two-form entry school where teachers feel valued, supported and motivated. Behaviour is outstanding and we were graded 'GOOD' with many outstanding features in the OFSTED inspection in 2013.

We are looking for an excellent, committed KS2 practitioner who will extend and build on current good practice. Candidates will, ideally, have one or two years' experience and have aspiration for middle management, ideally ICT-linked. There is much that makes Maryland unique:

- Curriculum innovators.
- Independent research projects and initiatives that improve standards. See school website 'Our initiatives'.
- Stable staffing –all but one classroom teacher was a NQT in the school. Long-serving support staff.
- HT and the rest of the leadership team train, coach, moderate and mentor externally.
- Nurture staff ambition and provide CPD to realise that ambition. We also foster an environment where potential is recognised, highlighted and encouraged.
- Model school for RWI since 2006.
- Model school for Google Education
- 2016 Newham debate winners. Awards for choir, nature garden, dance troupe.
- We-PUBLISH website dedicated to publishing pupils' writing <http://www.marylandwepublish.org/>
- High level of parental engagement and satisfaction.
- Cluckingham Palace where our beloved hens provide us with eggs and learning opportunities.
- RHS Award winning Nature's Garden –

our rich resource for outdoor learning. Also offered as a resource to other schools.

-Prevailing environment of calm and common purpose and a place children enjoy coming to every day.

We welcome visits from potential candidates. Please call 020 8534 8135 to arrange an appointment. The schools in this authority have a commitment for Safeguarding Children and this post is subject to an enhanced DBS check and references.

If shortlisted, references will be sent for before interview. If called to interview, candidates will need to bring photo identification to the interview.

Closing date for applications is Friday 26th May 2017. Interviews during the half-term holiday.
