We're forking out the prizes to first winners of our fab Cultivation Street competition...

SINCE launching Cultivation Street 2018, we've been welly-deep in inspirational gardening projects from across the UK. It's been a fine summer and the standard reflects the weather... absolutely blooming wonderful. After digging through a record number of entries, we're revealing the first batch of winners who help share a mighty £21,000 in cash prizes and 1,600 gorgeous Calliope® geraniums from our sponsor. The judges - myself, Lady Salisbury, Simon Sadinsky of The Prince's Foundation and the Sunday Mirror's Gemma Aldridge - really had our work cut out.

Community Gardens Regional winners

After hours of deliberation, I'm thrilled to announce the winners of five regional Community Garden categories, who have produced inspiring projects bursting with spirit. Each receives £1,000 and 100 Calliope® geranium plants.

NORTH: Shoulder to Soldier Community Garden, Leigh, Gtr Manchester

With an ethos of accessibility and inclusion, 30 Forces veterans worked tirelessly to turn scrubland into a lush garden accessible to wheelchair users and amputees alike. Project member Linda Fisher said: "Created by a formidable force of people who served Queen and Country, our garden has helped people with anxiety, depression, mental health conditions, social isolation and loneliness. It's a real community garden. It has a shed and a kettle at its heart and veterans with specialist skills helping other veterans." JUDGES' VERDICT: We loved the inclusivity of the wheelchair-friendly pathways and varied-height raised beds - and that it is giving such joy to our veterans.

SOUTH: Stanford and Cleveland Community Garden, Brighton

A 15-strong team has turned a once-uninspiring piece of tarmac into a thriving garden for the community. Local Debbie Pryer said: "We are self-funded and the prize will be very useful. We will buy planters to allow those with difficulties bending down to have easier access." JUDGES' VERDICT: We were amazed at the amount achieved by so few people. We loved the grow-your-own raised beds with free produce for the community to pick and the ethos of "take what you need, but leave some for others".

MIDLANDS: Tiny Trowels Community Garden, Bromsgrove, Wores
Alison Pike has turned her garden into a marvellous space for children. Some 60 kids a week attend Tiny Trowels sessions to grow plants, hunt bugs and befriend the garden's chickens. Alison said: "It has been lovely to see friendships form not only between children but also adults. Parenting can sometimes be a lonely job and to have other parents that you can talk to over a cuppa can be priceless." JUDGES' VERDICT: Alison's passion really shines through and the impact her project has on the children, parents and carers is immense.

Wales: Tenby Day Centre, Tenby, Pembrokeshire
This fantastic project uses gardening

as therapy for elderly people suffering depression, loneliness and dementia. They have a remembrance rose garden, seating and a herb garden to stimulate senses of partially-sighted visitors. Sing Taylor, one of the co-ordinators, said: "If you work as a community you can achieve wonderful things." JUDGES' VERDICT: The Tenby team has gone the extra mile. We were thrilled to see a centre that encourages people to connect with nature, rather than plonking them in front of a TV. Scotland: Tay View Community Garden, Dundee
Located on a formerly disused inner-city site, Tay View Garden has terraces for locals to grow their own food and

Crop stars

joined together into a bustling community space in a project spanning 11 years. JUDGES' VERDICT: We were amazed by its beauty and how it unites the community. Essington in Bloom, Essington, Wolverhampton Small Spaces winner is a churchyard converted into an inspiring mini-garden. JUDGES' VERDICT: Vibrant and creative, with wonderful upcycled tyre displays.

created a stunning display using vibrant red Calliope® geraniums. It featured upcycled school sinks overflowing with blossoms and a "garden" sign made from artificial turf. JUDGES' VERDICT: Visual impact and its eco-friendly upcycling made this stand out. Rockcliffe Avenue, Whitley Bay, North Tyneside
The Front Gardens winner encompasses 23 front gardens and four adjacent plots an art wall for graffiti artists and kids to paint what they like. Community member Stuart Fairweather said: "The gardeners are a polyglot bunch from all corners of the Earth, growing crops to create dishes from their own cultures to share with others. Fruit, veg, wildlife and art come together in a many-faceted project." JUDGES' VERDICT: This garden involves such a cross-section of the community - from children to ex-addicts to refugees. The sense of community that these gardeners have created is second to none. Next week we'll reveal winners of the schools category, with the best receiving £2,500 plus 100 Calliope® geraniums.

GADGET

If you're elderly or struggle with a weak grip or injured wrists or arms, these Wolf Garten battery-powered telescopic lawn shears could be heaven-sent. They can be used easily in one hand, sitting or standing and come with a 75-minute rechargeable battery life.

They are easily adjustable and are great for trimming grass and soft foliage. I found them for £84.99 at fruuqo.co.uk.
