

Our printing process enables the print to go up to the inner blue circle.

The green circle represents the inner ring. When the ink prints over this, there can be a transition in the print.

It is recommended that foreground text should not cross over this point.

