out in books that are matched closely to each pupil's level of word reading.

Be able to read many common words containing GPCs taught so far, such as shout, hand, stop, or dream, without needing to blend the sounds out loud first.

Pupils' reading of common exception words, such as you, could, many, or people, should be secure this will increase their fluency by being able to read these words easily and automatically.

Pupils should be able to retell some familiar stories that have been read to and discussed with them or that they have acted out during Year 1.

Pupils should listen to and discuss a wide range of stories, poems, plays and information books; this should include whole books.

Pupils can read well and do so frequently, they will be able to increase their vocabulary, comprehension and their knowledge across the wider curriculum.

Continue to apply phonic knowledge and skills as the route to decode words until automatic decoding has become embedded and reading is fluent. Read accurately by blending the sounds in words that contain the graphemes taught so far, especially recognising alternative sounds for graphemes.	Read common exception words, noting unusual correspondence between spelling and sound and where these occur in the word. Read most words quickly and accurately when they have been frequently encountered without overt sounding and blending. Read aloud books closely matched to their improving phonic knowledge, sounding out unfamiliar words accurately, automatically and without undue hesitation. Re-read these books to build up their fluency and confidence	Recognise and join in with predictable phrases. Learn to appreciate rhymes and poems, and to recite some by heart.	Pupils should be taught to develop pleasure in reading, motivation to read and understanding. Listen to, discuss and express views about a wide range of poetry (including contemporary and classic), stories and non-fiction at a level beyond that at which they can read independently. Discuss the sequence of events in books and how items of information are related. Become increasingly familiar with and retell a wider range of stories, fairy stories and traditional tales. Be introduced to non-fiction books that are structured in different ways. Recognise simple recurring literary language in stories and poetry. Discuss their favourite words and phrases. Continue to build up a repertoire of poems learnt by heart, appreciating and reciting some, with appropriate intonation to make the meaning clear. Participate in discussion about books, poems and other works that are read to	Understand both the books that they can already read accurately and fluently and those that they listen to. Draw on what they already know or on background information and vocabulary provided by the teacher. Check that the text makes sense to them as they read and correct inaccurate reading. Make inferences on the basis of what is being said and done. Answer and ask questions. Predict what might happen on the basis of what has been read so far.	Use commas, question marks and exclamation marks to vary expression. Read aloud with expression and intonation.	Read accurately words of two or more syllables. Uses Grammar to decipher unfamiliar words. Read words containing taught GPCs and –s, -es, –ing, –ed, –er and –est endings. Read other words of more than one syllable that contain taught GPCs. Read words with contractions, e.g. I'm, I'll, we'll, and understand that the apostrophe, signals the omission of a letter. Read words containing common suffixes. 	Explain and discuss their understanding of books, poems and other material, both those that they listen to and those that they read for themselves.

Word Reading

By the beginning of Year 3, pupils should be able to read books written at an age appropriate interest level.

Children should be able to read accurately and at a speed that is sufficient for them to focus on understanding what they read rather than on decoding individual words.

Children should be able to decode most new words outside their spoken vocabulary, making a good approximation to the word's pronunciation.

Most pupils will not need further direct teaching of word reading skills: they are able to decode unfamiliar words accurately, and need very few repeated experiences of this before the word is stored in such a way that they can read it without overt sound blending.

However, pupils who are still struggling to decode need to be taught to do this urgently through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers. If they cannot decode independently and fluently, they will find it increasingly difficult to understand what they read and to write down what they want to say.

As far as possible, however, they should follow the Year 3 and 4 programme of study in terms of listening to new books, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and discussing these.

Teaching should be directed towards developing the breadth and depth of their reading, making sure that they become independent, fluent and enthusiastic readers who read widely and frequently.

They should develop an understanding and enjoyment of stories, poetry, plays and non-fiction, learning to read silently.

Comprehension

They should develop knowledge and skills in reading non-fiction about a wide range of subjects.

They should learn to justify their views about what they have read with support where necessary.

Word Reading
During Years 5, teachers should continue to emphasise pupils' enjoyment and understanding of language, especially vocabulary, to support their reading and writing.

It is essential that pupils whose decoding skills are poor are taught through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers in terms of their decoding and spelling.

As far as possible, pupils should follow the Year 5 and 6 programme of study in terms of listening to books and other writing that they have not come across before, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and having a chance to talk about all of these.

By the beginning of Year 5, pupils should be able to read aloud a wider range of poetry and books written at an age-appropriate interest level with accuracy and at a reasonable speaking pace.

They should be able to read most words effortlessly and should be able to work out how to pronounce unfamiliar written words with increasing automaticity. If the pronunciation sounds unfamiliar, they should ask for help in determining both the meaning of the word and how to pronounce it correctly.

Children should be able to prepare readings, developing effective intonation to show their understanding, and should be able to summarise and present a familiar story in their own words.

Comprehension

They should be reading widely and frequently, outside as well as in school, for pleasure and information. They should be able to read silently, and then discuss what they have read.

Reading should be sufficiently fluent and relatively effortless across subjects and not just in English, with a need for pupils to learn subject-specific vocabulary.

Word Reading

During Years 6, teachers should continue to emphasise pupils' enjoyment and understanding of language, especially vocabulary, to support their reading and writing.

It is essential that pupils whose decoding skills are poor are taught through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers in terms of their decoding and spelling.

As far as possible, pupils should follow the Year 5 and 6 programme of study in terms of listening to books and other writing that they have not come across before, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and having a chance to talk about all of these.

All children should read aloud a wider range of poetry and books written at an age-appropriate interest level with accuracy (at a speaking pace).

They should read the majority of words effortlessly and work out how to pronounce unfamiliar written words with increasing automaticity. If the pronunciation sounds unfamiliar, they should use a range of strategies to determine both the meaning of the word and how to pronounce it correctly.

Children should be able to prepare readings, with appropriate and effective intonation to show their understanding, and should be able to summarise and present a familiar story in their own words.

Comprehension

They should be reading widely and frequently, outside as well as in school, for pleasure and information. They should be able to read silently, discussing what they have read with detail.

By the end of Year 6, pupils' reading should be sufficiently fluent and effortless for them to manage the general demands of the curriculum in Year 7, across subjects and not just in English. There will continue to be a need for pupils to learn subject-specific vocabulary.
