RACKING INSPECTIONS

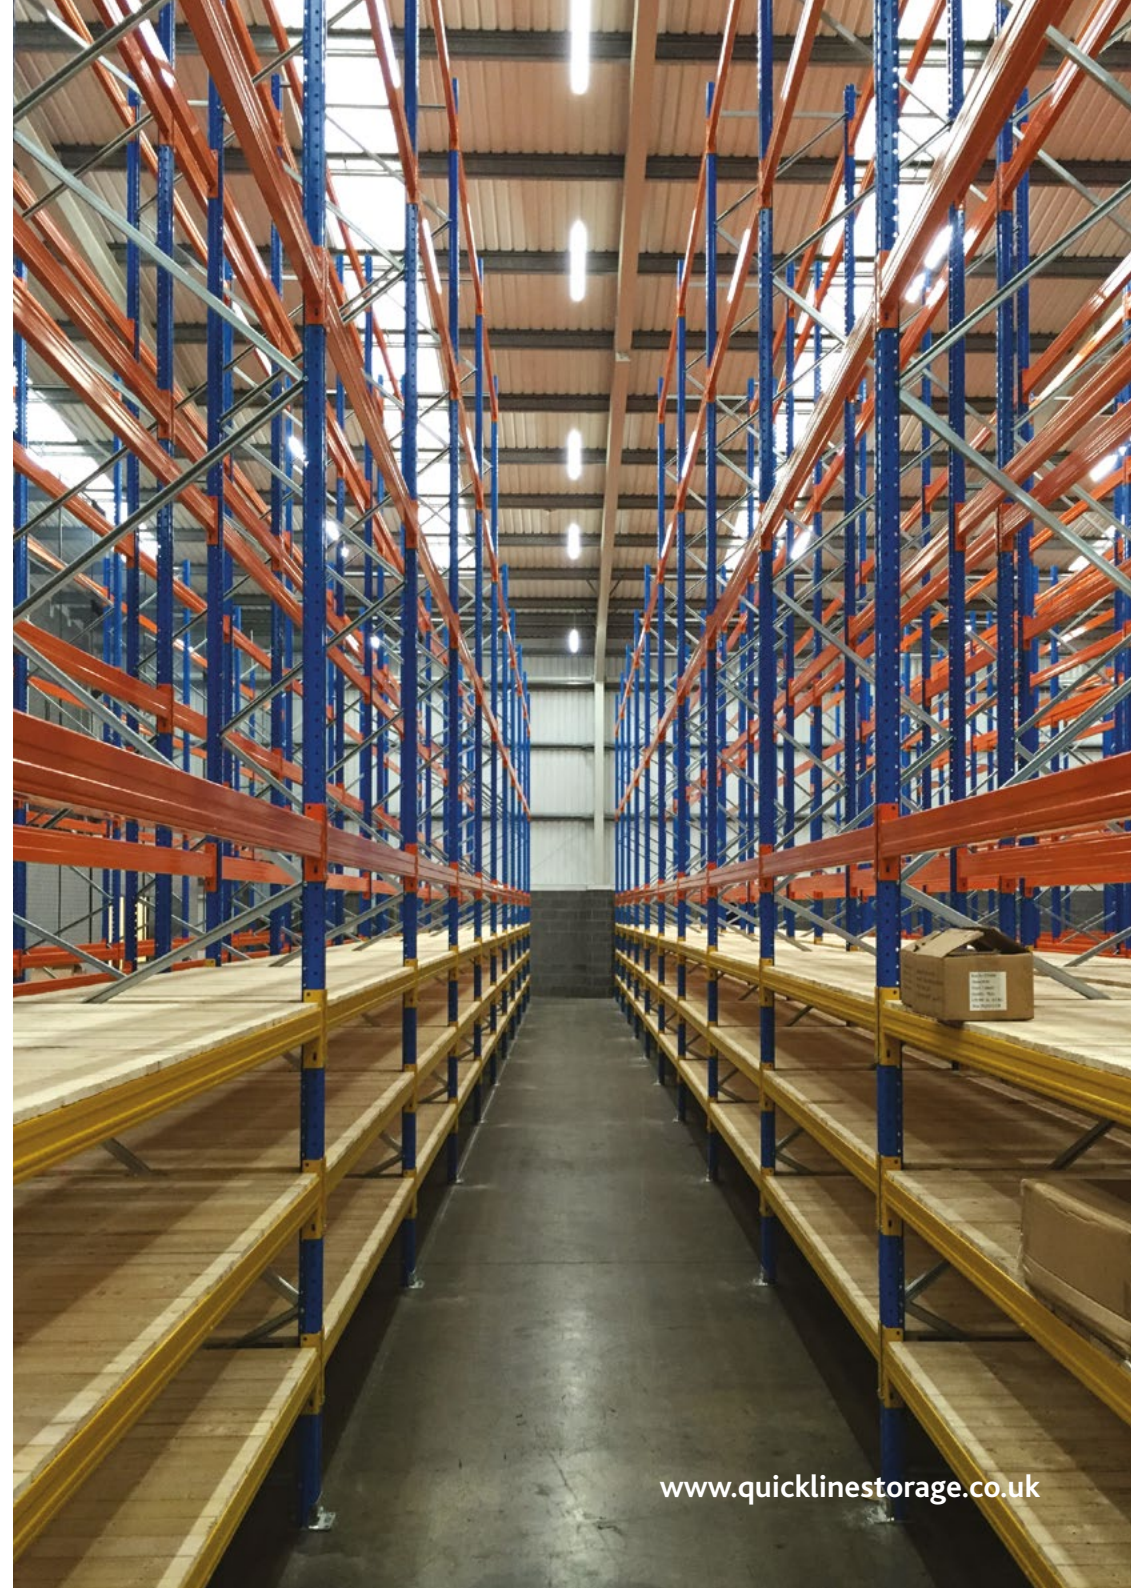

If you are involved in the safety of your warehouse, you are required under Health & Safety legislation to have any storage equipment checked for defects on a regular basis.

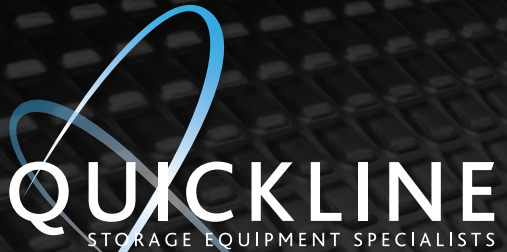

Racking should be formally assessed on an annual or bi-annual basis by a competent person. Factors to be considered on this assessment include the systems overall safety and suitability for the environment in which it is installed, and the products stored, as well as highlighting damage in need of repair.

An annual inspection is very cost effective in comparison to the costs of a health and safety incident, which can lose time, profitability and reputation, all of which can add up to a significant amount.

Our SARI (Sema Approved Racking Inspector) qualified surveyor can help you prevent this by carrying out a thorough rack inspection.
