FABRIC CONSTRUCTION

Our garments are engineered from the highest quality materials to provide superior waterproofness, durability and breathability.

Zhik 2-layer shells feature a super soft mesh lining that provides comfort and insulation.

Zhik 3-layer shells are unlined and use a 3-layer fabric construction where a thin and highly breathable mesh scrim layer is bonded on the inner side of the membrane improving the waterproof durability and breathability of the fabric whilst also reducing weight and bulk.

WATERPROOFNESS & WATERPROOF DURABILITY

Hydrostatic (water pressure) testing indicates the amount of pressure that a fabric can withstand before leaking. While it is important to have a high waterproof rating, the waterproof durability of the fabric is also critical, this is the ability of a fabric to maintain this waterproofness after extended use. Zhik has developed its own waterproof durability testing method that is used to test the long term waterproof durability of a textile, this test is specifically designed to simulate wear and tear in wet conditions (when a waterproof membrane is most vulnerable).

BREATHABILITY

There are many different methods for testing breathability of a fabric. We recommend comparing the vapour resistance (RET) of a fabric as it is a far more accurate method of comparing different materials with different membrane constructions. Moisture vapour permeability data can vary widely depending on the standard used, the type of membrane and whether the membrane or complete laminated fabric is tested, it is therefore not possible to compare different textiles using this standard. Zhik always tests the complete laminated fabric to ensure our products meet our performance requirements

*Due to Isotak's unique multi-layered membrane construction, existing moisture vapour permeability testing standards do not produce comparable data for this fabric.

SEAM TAPE

QuLock is a seam taping process where we have thorough quality control checking through every step of the seam taping process from tape production through to finished garment. The QuLock process includes the use of our own proprietary seam tape and reinforcement of critical junctions for further durability in key areas.

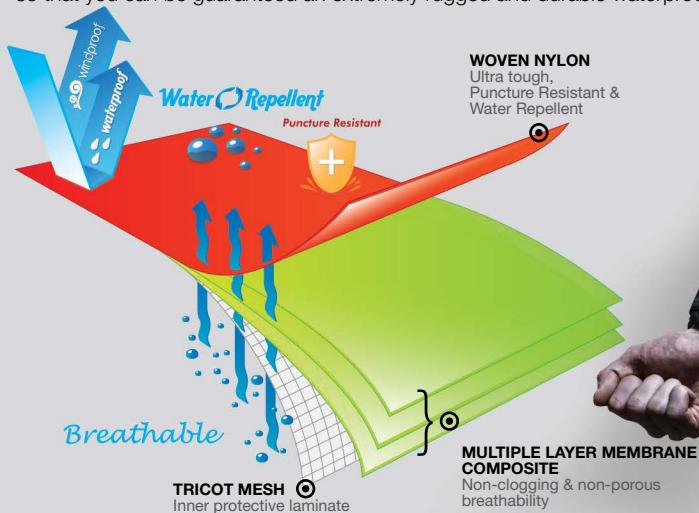

ISOTAK[®]

OCEAN

Developed and tested in extreme ocean sailing conditions. Every material, construction process and feature in this range has been selected to provide the toughest, lightest, most durably waterproof ocean kit available.

The Zhik designers have achieved remarkable improvements with Isotak[®] Ocean, producing a fabric that is both more comfortable and more durable. There is reduced bulk and weight, with all key features needed for extreme ocean racing included. Isotak[®] Ocean is a multi-layer composite membrane fabric that has extreme waterproof durability.

Isotak[®] Ocean also introduces the new Zhik Qulock[™] seam sealing system. The Qulock[™] system includes a proprietary seam tape that is carefully tuned to the inner fabric lining to maximise waterproofness. This seam sealing is also applied under strict manufacturing processes, and then every Isotak[®] Ocean product is pressure tested, so that you can be guaranteed an extremely rugged and durable waterproof seal.

SUPERTHERMAL™ HYDROBASE®

Superthermal™ Hydrobase® is our new proprietary baselayer composite that combines polypropylene and polyester fibres to create a lightweight, warm and highly moisture wicking material.

Every innovation known to the Zhik designers was utilised in Superthermal™ HydroBase® to optimise moisture wicking away from the body and also to promote quick drying on the outer fabric surface. The goal was to produce a thermal fabric that outperformed all others available. The fabric construction has been engineered to regulate body temperature by transferring moisture away from the skin during periods of high activity while also providing excellent thermal insulation in extremely cold conditions.

The Superthermal™ Hydrobase® composite material combines hydrophilic polyester fibres and hydrophobic polypropylene fibres in a 3D knitted thermal grid. The hydrophilic polyester fibres suck moisture away from the skin and the hydrophobic polypropylene fibres filter this moisture through the fabric and to the outside of the garment. The active transfer of moisture will keep the user dry even after extended periods and will also aid in regulating body temperature.

Superthermal™ HydroBase® includes an antibacterial treatment to help reduce odour after extended use.
