

- 1 Modular tables allow for different conference/presentation layouts. This would be ideal for training purposes, and the room could also be expanded with the partition wall.
- 2 Half-height divides to provide privacy to the Human Resources team.
- 3 Tall storage cupboards provide subtle division of space between departments, which also acts to diffuse noise created at the informal group tables.
- 4 Modular tables used as desks to support group discussion. Central table allows for visual discussion of ideas.
- 5 IT team situated close to the server room and conference suite for easy access.
- 6 Kitchenette to serve the conference suite, for casual refreshments. It could also be used by managers, as they are likely to be in the meetings when the room is occupied.
- 7 By creating an opening in this wall and reorganising the managers' offices, the management become more visible and engaged with the work environment.
- 8 Folding partition wall with increased acoustic insulation.
- 9 12 Sit Stand desks available for the departments that regularly work from home. The overall number of desks is reduced to reflect this.
