INVITATION / WELCOME MESSAGE

Sorghum in the 21st Century: Food, Feed and Fuel for a Rapidly Changing World (www.21centurysorghum.com) is an unparalleled global conference aimed at connecting and leveraging sorghum science, industry, and development to meet the many diverse needs of an advancing world and growing population. It will be held at the beautiful Century City Conference Centre in Cape Town, South Africa from April 9-12, 2018, with expected participation from every major sorghum producing region in the world.

Led by the Feed the Future Innovation Lab for Collaborative Research on Sorghum and Millet (www.k-state.edu/smil), this conference will draw together worldwide competencies on genetics and genomics, breeding, production systems management, post-harvest systems, added-value product development, marketing and entrepreneurship. The conference will have key points of interest for both private and public sector researchers as well as agribusinesses and rural development specialists from around the world.

All elements of this conference will point in a common direction; specifically, the strategic advancement of sorghum for the 21st century across borders, uses and needs. The conference will also provide the opportunity for more indepth exploration of the following areas:

- The most cutting-edge research in sorghum genetics, genomics and phenomics;
- Opportunities for sorghum breeding in an information and data rich environment;
- Strategies for reducing loss during production, harvest, handling and processing;
- Identification of innovative seed systems to reach new markets and enhance value to existing markets;
- Opportunities to create new value along the value chain that exploits sorghum's biological and nutritional advantage;
- Visibility of sorghum in the global innovation environment, particularly return on investment in sorghum research including associated human welfare impacts;
- Leveraging public research capacities with private sector and field level realities and needs to orient strategic investment into sorghum research.

Sorghum in the 21st Century will present a global opportunity to enhance collaborations, establish new partnerships and accelerate sorghum value chain development in a time when it is needed the most. With attendance anticipated at between 500-750 of the world's key sorghum actors, it is an opportunity not to be missed. The conference's success will be the success of producers and consumers around the world, and the benefits will be widespread throughout the industry.

The execution of a conference of this magnitude is highly dependent on the funds identified to support it. Additional information and details in regards to Sponsorship Opportunities, Participant Scholarship Support, and Research & Industry Exhibition Opportunities is provided in the following pages.

For more information about the conference and confirmation of your specific sponsorship interests, please contact Nat Bascom (Chair) or Catherine Taylor below.
