

The key to a safer, more productive business

Door access control systems

Securing your business starts at the door

Whatever business you're in, there are some things you can't compromise on. Keeping staff safe, protecting customer data, keeping expensive equipment in safe hands; whatever matters most to you, our secure entry systems make it easy to protect it.

"Can someone let them in?"

Our systems let you speak to, or even see, visitors before you let them in. Better still, it works over your office phone system, so staff can do everything without leaving their desks. No interruptions. No running up and down stairs. Just a safer, more productive office.

Phone system-based security is ideal if your building doesn't have a front desk. You can keep your office secure and make sure visitors are greeted by the right member of staff, all without the extra expense of a receptionist.

Uncompromising security, uncompromising service

Not sure where to start? That's OK. Our expert teams manage the whole process. We'll help you select the right system and install it with minimal disruption. For added peace of mind, we offer maintenance contracts to keep everything in tip-top condition.

The perfect system for your business

Security shouldn't be complicated. It shouldn't come at a huge cost, either. So, we've built different systems to suit all sorts of needs and budgets.

We provide a range of complete Analogue and IP access-control solutions, making them ideal for various business and residential applications. The Analogue solutions connect directly via Analogue extension ports, making use of the organisation's existing telephone network. Our IP access-control systems support pure IP PBXs and communicate using the capabilities of IP phones.

Here are just some of the features:

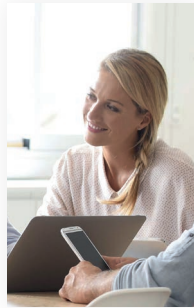

- Remote door communication in a single building or multiple entrances over other sites.
- Video intelligence captures the high-quality video on a PC or monitor and transmits it using standard Analogue, Ethernet or IP connection.
- Selected ranges of IP door access-control systems are designed to link with the innovaphone IP handsets so you and your team can easily see real-time video of your visitors on your innovaphone high-resolution handset display.
- Day and night mode provides alternative answering arrangements for door calls after the business hours.
- Heavy-duty Piezo technology is ideal for both indoor and outdoor environments. Their anti-vandal and weather-resistant housing with a rugged design meets a wide range of professional demands.
