

ProSoccerTalk

PFT

HBT

PBT

CFB

PHT

GTC

PST

CBT

MST

CleanMyMac 2

Download Now

Legendary cleaner for your Mac.
Now twice as effective.

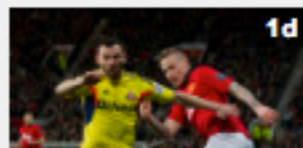

Whitecaps FC defender Jay DeMerit, now a...

Steve Cherundolo training on his own again at...

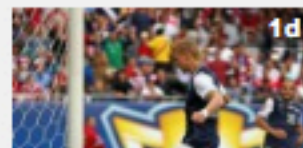

Video: Where Barclays Premier League teams...

Sunderland eliminate Manchester...

A streamlined approach to personnel at FC...

Brek Shea should hang around Barnsley a little...

Whitecaps FC defender Jay DeMerit, now a cover boy!

Steve Davis | Jan 22, 2014, 7:04 PM EST

3 Comments

Vancouver Whitecaps captain Jay DeMerit has covered a lot of ground during his soccer journeys. He's been so very many things.

He was a longshot dreamer coming out of the United States – but one who climbed and climbed and made it to the England's upper tiers.

Then he was a World Cup starter. And somewhere along the way, DeMerit became a bit of a movie star, the central character in his own fascinating story.

Later, he was a returning MLS hero, making his way back into the top league of the United States and Canada and establishing himself as a Vancouver Whitecaps' building block.

Now, the man has added something else to his personal CV: Magazine cover boy! Eat your heart out David Beckham.

DeMerit, by the way, recently re-signed with the Whitecaps. We talked just a few weeks ago about why that's such a good thing for the club, now entering a new day under new manager Carl Robinson.

Search

NBC SPORTS TALK MOBILE

- iPhone
- iPad
- Android
- About this Blog
- Feedback
- Log In/Register
- RSS
- Facebook
- Twitter

FEATURED VIDEO

