SIRIUS Secure Internet Shell

The Sirius Secure Internet Shell is a secure web based front end, which enables you to log in and receive data from multiple business applications. It's banking level security means accessing your data remotely is safe and secure at all times.

Secure Online Access to your Data

Sirius removes your security concerns giving you complete access to your data with your own secure online portal. From CRM to Sales figures, you will have 'banking level' protection for your sensitive business data.

A System to Suit your Business

Give us your requirements, and you'll get a secure login to all your data using one single domain. Sirius brings together information from applications, databases, spreadsheets etc. into one easy to use front-end.

Configurable Access Levels

Configurable security features give you total control over access levels. Once logged in users will have their own view of the system, dependent on options granted - so you are in control of who can see what and when.

Confidence and Compatibility

Written initially for the Financial Sector and rigorously penetration tested, Sirius is the natural choice for your data security. By using a Microsoft platform you can have Complete confidence in both security and compatibility.
