

Sally Cadec joined SafeGuard Security Consultants Limited in 2005 as head of administration, becoming a director in 2007.

Sally joined the Army in 1988 achieving rapid promotion to Lieutenant Colonel in 2002. Throughout her long and varied career, which included operational deployments, she was responsible for ensuring and maintaining the physical security of military establishments including access control and search routines, the wellbeing and security of military and civilian personnel, handling of classified documentation, the security of IT systems, armouries and stores, secure communications, safes and cash handling including cash in transit.

Sally has undertaken numerous security audits and has regularly re-assessed, refreshed or produced Operating Procedures as appropriate. In her final tour, as a member of the Royal Household, she was responsible for facilitating secure communications between the Household and the Ministry of Defence.

Her inherent analytical skills and wide experience of strategic planning, risk management and training enable her to quickly identify the key issues and to advise appropriately and objectively. She is well versed and adept at dealing discreetly with a wide range of personnel ranging from senior military personnel and members of the Royal Household to young soldiers and families.

She continues to assist the Armed Forces in her voluntary capacity as Chairman of the Dorset Branch of SSAFA The Armed Forces Charity.

Key attributes: Consistent feedback as being highly motivated, efficient and personable, a multi-tasker who thrives on challenges in new areas.
