

Northdoor in the insurance industry

Northdoor is an IT consultancy and solutions provider specialising in data solutions for the insurance industry. Since 1989, Northdoor has delivered solutions that help insurance companies improve their business performance and processes through advanced technologies that enable optimal use of business data.

What we do

We apply our knowledge and expertise to help insurers capture, manage and analyse large volumes of commercial data. As the lifeblood of any company, your data represents a strategic asset and key source of competitive advantage. Our business and information technology specialists will help you to harness this asset and drive clear strategic insights from it. Our core business and IT management consultancy services – Store IT, Protect IT, Use IT – cover the entire data journey.

Our experience in the industry and knowledge of the challenges facing insurance companies inspired us to develop NdexInsure, a suite of products that support the underwriting and broking lifecycle. This flexible, scalable platform provides the full range of modules an insurance organisation needs. It includes Sanctions Checker, a powerful and easy-to-use system that enables companies to screen clients against international sanctions lists for compliance purposes.
