

Tour operator named best for singles holiday

Family-run Swaffham tour operator One Traveller took home an award at the British Travel Awards 2016, held in London.

One Traveller, which specialises in holidays for solo travellers aged above 50, won the Best Singles Holiday Company.

For the Swaffham-based business, the win is the third in a row, and comes a year before their 10th anniversary.

Ian Darkin, director, said: "Next year sees One Traveller celebrating

10 years in business and to win this accolade for a third year in a row is fantastic.

"The team ensure we take care of every detail on our holidays and to be given recognition for this hard work is great."

After nine years as a tour manager, Mr Darkin and wife Emma founded the business to cater for the mature single traveller.

Today, it welcomes more than 3,000 like-minded travellers to destinations across the globe.
