CFD

CFD is contract for difference. It is a deal between the seller and the buyer. If you open a buy order and close the transaction when price moves up you will make a profit. If you open a sell order and close it when price moves down you will make a profit. In conclusion you can earn on every price movement which is not possible if we take into consideration for example stocks instruments.

Check out the payout profile for hypothetical CFD (it does not take into consideration swap rates or any fees).

Swap is simply the cost-of-carry that is applied to your account on a day-to-day basis. 3 Days Swap is connected with a three day settlement and is three times bigger than standard swap.

3 Days Swap for Equites, Forex and Precious Metals

3 Days Swap for Commodities, Crypto and Indices

Leverage is a tool used to maximize your benefits. You do not need the whole capital to trade, small percentage of the entire amount is more than enough.

Feel free to test our Interactive Leverage Calculator. Bear in mind that values of required margin might change due to current market situation in the near future.

How to start

You are new to trading? Start with tutorial on the top of our website (available when logged out).

After going through intro it is time to test our SimpleFX demo account. We offer our clients free virtual money to test our platform. Open our webtrader and feel free to test it, choose your leverage and trade!

BUY order means that you make a profit when you close your position above opening price.

SELL order means that you make a profit when you close an order below opening price while price goes down.

Be aware that if the price goes the opposite direction that you assumed you will not make a profit and significant loss may occur.

Visit also our FAQ section to learn even more about trading.

After testing us, when you are confident about your trading skills choose your deposit method.
