

It's no good burying your head in the sand...

... You need BAFE ✓

When you specify any size of Fire Alarm System or Emergency Lighting you need to be sure that it meets the latest standards, using approved equipment and that your contractor is competent.

There are now over 550 BAFE SP203 registered contractors from all parts of the UK who are certificated so that they meet your requirements.

This key third party certification scheme is backed by UKAS accredited Certification Bodies thus ensuring you get the products and systems your fire risk assessment requires.

BAFE.... Independent – National – Quality!

You need BAFE

If you specify fire alarm or portable fire extinguisher companies as sub-contractors, you should be looking for BAFE registered companies.

Why.....? Because BAFE is the independent 3rd party approvals organisation, which ensures quality for the fire protection industry and provides the vital reassurance that the services being bought or specified are effective, reliable and competently maintained.

It also means that you are well on the way to meeting your obligations under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order and the Fire (Scotland) Act 2005.
