“lan does more now than he has ever done in his life.”

Grace, lan's mum

Ian lives in Ayrshire. In 2004, Affinity Trust took over Ian's support. This was part of the NHS campus reprovion programme led by the local council.

At first Grace, Ian's mum, was worried about his move to live in the community. She says: "I'll be honest. To start with I had fears about Ian living in the community. I thought it was a terrible idea and I was worried. But the support from Affinity Trust has proved me wrong as it's the best thing that ever happened for Ian."

Ian has complex healthcare and support needs. His small, dedicated support team provide him with specialist 24 hour, one to one support so that he can live happily and safely in his own home. Some members of his Affinity Trust team have been working with Ian since he moved to live in his community.

Ian has a motability car which he uses to get out and about. He likes going to the beach and visiting local towns.

Ian loves music and going to concerts. He is a huge fan of Scottish music and singing. This means it is important that his support staff like music too.

Grace says: "Ian does more now than he has ever done in his life."

"Ian's Affinity Trust staff team are great. It's the same support workers so they know Ian very well and he likes them. You couldn't get better staff."
