INSIDE THIS ISSUE

Working out how to make adequate financial provision for retirement is one of the most important financial decisions most of us will ever face. On page 18, we consider how it can be a daunting topic, with the options seeming to be overwhelming. Over the past year, there has been a seismic change to the retirement landscape with the introduction of the Government's 'pension freedoms' announced in the 2014 Budget.

On page 12, with Christmas just round the corner, making an investment for your children or grandchildren is a great way to give them a financial start in life, long after the festivities are over. Even small amounts can really add up if you save regularly from a child's birth, and there are many ways to invest on behalf of a child.

No one likes to think that something bad will happen to them. If you couldn't work due to a serious illness, how would you manage? Could you survive on savings or sick pay from work? If not, you may need some other way to keep paying the bills – and you might want to consider income protection insurance. Turn to page 06 to find out more.

Also inside this issue, we look at taking risk with some of your money to achieve a sustainable retirement income, putting money aside for the proverbial rainy day, and how wrapping up with an ISA can be very tax-efficient. The full list of the articles featured in this issue appears on page 03 and opposite.

THE VALUE OF EDUCATION

UK parents believe university is now unaffordable for most

Many UK parents will now be reviewing how they will help their children pay for a university degree. With tuition fees alone costing an average £9,000 a year, university is a significant investment for both parents and students.

An annual HSBC report, the 'Value of Education Learning for life', shows that although 71% of surveyed parents think university is unaffordable for most people in the UK, nearly half (48%) believe an undergraduate degree or higher is necessary for their children to achieve their life goals.

More than two thirds of surveyed parents (72%) have a specific occupation in mind for their child, and the lengthier (and often more costly) degrees of engineering (11%) and medicine (10%) top the list of parents' preferred courses.

PARENTS EXPECT TO REPAY UNIVERSITY DEBT FOR EIGHT YEARS

The survey found that although parents see independence (86%) and learning to be financially responsible (82%) among the most important skills university offers, they still expect to support their children financially throughout university.

More than nine in ten parents said they will contribute to their child's tuition fees and/or living costs.

After a mortgage, a university degree can be the most significant debt families have to repay. UK parents who currently borrow, or plan to borrow, to fund their children's university costs expect to repay the debt for eight years and for their children to be paying off their share for 12 years.

PARENTS WILLING TO PAY MORE FOR OVERSEAS EDUCATION

Despite the cost, nearly two thirds of UK parents (67%) would consider sending their child abroad to university. Of those parents, 59% would be prepared to pay more for the experience compared to what they would pay to educate their child in the UK.

The main reason parents would not consider sending their child to study at university abroad is that they do not want their child to be that far away from home (25%) or they cannot afford it (24%). ■

Source:
The Value of Education Learning for life UK Report was published in July and represents the view of 5,500 parents in 16 countries, including 352 UK parents. The findings in this report are based on a nationally representative survey of 352 parents in the UK, who have at least one child aged 23 or younger currently (or soon to be) in education, and who are solely or partially responsible for making decisions about their child's education. The research was conducted online by Ipsos MORI in March and April 2015.

MAKE SURE YOUR NUMBERS ADD UP

Many UK parents feel a responsibility to help pay for their children's education, but despite best laid plans, by the time their children reach university age, some parents haven't saved as much as they had intended. With the cost of university continuing to rise, planning ahead can help ease financial pressure. Being prepared by understanding options available and taking action early can give parents the confidence that they can support their children through university in years to come.

IT WON'T HAPPEN TO ME

If you couldn't work due to incapacity caused by illness or injury, how would you manage?

No one likes to think that something bad will happen to them. If you couldn't work due to incapacity caused by illness or injury, how would you manage? Could you survive on savings or sick pay from work? If not, you may need some other way to keep paying the bills – and you might want to consider income protection insurance. Currently, 10.8 million UK households are at risk of their income falling by at least a third if the main earner stopped working due to ill health[1].

LONG-TERM ABSENCE

Whether or not you have children or other dependants, if illness would mean you couldn't pay the bills, you should consider income protection insurance; with 131 million days lost to sickness absence every year[2], the reality is that it's not just the odd day off that could impact on you – a long-term absence could be a real possibility. You're also most likely to require it if you're employed or self-employed and you don't have a sick pay arrangement to fall back on.

Income protection insurance is a long-term insurance policy that provides a monthly payment if you can't work because you're ill or injured, and typically pays out until you can start working again, or until you retire, die or the end of the policy term – whichever is sooner.

WAITING PERIOD BEFORE PAYMENTS START

There's a waiting period before the payments start. You generally set payments to start after your sick pay ends, or after any other insurance stops covering you. Usually, the longer you wait, the lower the monthly payments.

Policies may cover most illnesses that leave you unable to work, either in the short or long term (depending on the type of policy and its definition of incapacity), and you can claim as many times as you need to while the policy lasts.

EMPLOYMENT SUPPORT ALLOWANCE

You can get financial and work-related support through Employment and Support Allowance (ESA[3]. You'll normally get the assessment rate for 13 weeks after your claim. This will be:

- Up to £57.90 a week if you're aged under 25
- Up to £73.10 a week if you're aged 25 or over

After that, if you're entitled to ESA, you'll be placed in one of two groups and will receive:

- Up to £102.15 a week if you're in the work-related activity group
- Up to £109.30 a week if you're in the support group

If you're in the support group and on income-related ESA, you're also entitled to the Enhanced Disability Premium at £15.75 a week.

FEW HAVE ANY PROTECTION

Worryingly, only four in ten have any awareness of how to protect their income should they become unable to work due to health reasons, and few have any protection in place.

As well as underestimating their chances of being unable to work because of medical reasons, people also believe that if it does happen, it will occur later. Just under half believe that those aged between 45 and 54 are at highest risk when, in reality, the likelihood increases from the age of 40 to almost one in five, and by 55, as many as 28% can no longer work.

MAINTAINING A CURRENT LIFESTYLE

Looking at the impact on their finances, 44% of Britons anticipate their income being cut by up to half if they became unable to work due to disability, and only 15% say they could maintain their current lifestyle with this reduction.

State benefits are considered to be the main source of alternative income, though only a fifth think they would be eligible for support if their household income dropped by 30%.

EMPLOYERS NOT OFFERING INCOME PROTECTION

Interestingly, payments by insurers are thought to play a minor role, with 70% of respondents saying their employers didn't offer income protection, and three quarters having no such cover.

In reality, however, figures show that 16% of the working age population in the UK suffer a disability that prevents them from working, and around 300,000 people a year fall out of work and into the welfare system because of health-related issues[4]. ■

MEETING YOUR IMMEDIATE COSTS OF LIVING AND LIFESTYLE

Income protection insurance is designed to provide you with peace of mind that should the worst happen, you will be able to continue to meet your immediate costs of living and lifestyle. Generally, it's cheaper than most people think, and in the majority of cases, some cover is better than none at all. If you would like to review your current situation and ensure you're fully covered, please contact us for further information.

Older workers delaying retirement to release cash from their savings

One in four older workers could delay retirement after dipping into their pension pot, new research from Zurich shows.

WORKING BEYOND PLANNED RETIREMENT DATE

Just over a quarter (26%) of over-55s in employment said they would be likely to work beyond their planned retirement date after using the pension freedoms to release cash from their savings.

Over a third (35%) of those who said they would put their retirement on hold claimed they would be likely to work for a further five or more years, while a quarter (23%) would prolong their careers by two years.

FAR-REACHING EFFECT ON RETIREMENT TRENDS

The pension freedoms could have a far-reaching effect on retirement trends. As many as a quarter of over-55s could delay retirement – some by more than five years – after unlocking cash from their pension. Increasingly, more people may use the reforms to boost their spending power. The freedoms give older employees a chance to access their pension by spending an amount of their savings and staying in work longer to top them up again.

In most cases, individuals who access their pensions will see a reduction in their annual allowance. This means the amount they can save into a pension tax-free will fall from £40,000 to £10,000.

The good news though is that in April 2015, the Government gave more options to those retiring. Based on the new rules, you will have the option to take your defined contribution pension savings as cash, buy an annuity, use a drawdown pension without any limits or use a combination of any of these. Of course, you need to have the pension funds in the first place to make these new found options work to your advantage. ■

WORKING LONGER THAN ANTICIPATED TO PLUG A SAVINGS GAP

Some older workers who access their pension could face a squeeze on their contributions and find it harder to refill their pots, which could mean they end up working for longer than they anticipated to plug any gaps in their savings, while others might face a shortfall in retirement. If you would like to discuss your requirements, please contact us for more information.

WRAP UP WITH AN ISA

A tax-efficient integral part of your investment strategy

It's not going to be long before we see the arrival of the New Year, and with it the start of the ISA (Individual Savings Account) season. The 2015/16 deadline on 5 April 2016 is when you need to have taken full advantage of this year's ISA allowance.

ISAs are not products in their own right but are 'wrappers', designed to protect your investment from Capital Gains Tax (CGT), and also provide the opportunity for tax advantages on the income generated.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU INVEST IN AN ISA?

There are two different types of ISA: a Stocks & Shares ISA and a Cash ISA. You can put your £15,240 ISA allowance for 2015/16 in a Stocks & Shares ISA, a Cash ISA or a mixture of the two.

You can also freely transfer any ISA savings you've built up previously between a Stocks & Shares ISA and a Cash ISA.

Cash can be held in a Stocks & Shares ISA and does not need to be held solely for the purpose of investing in assets, and from 6 April 2015, the Additional Permitted ISA allowance has become available to the spouse or registered civil partner of a deceased ISA investor.

WHAT'S A CASH ISA?

It's basically a savings account where you don't pay tax on any interest you earn. So if you have any savings, it can be good idea to start with a Cash ISA.

WHAT'S A STOCKS & SHARES ISA?

It's a tax-efficient investment account that lets you put your money into cash and/or different types of investments. With Stocks & Shares ISAs, any returns you make will be tax-efficient.

Remember, as with any investment, the value of your fund can go up or down and may be worth less than you paid in. ■

EVALUATING YOUR FUTURE FINANCES

New possibilities in retirement, and the options available to you

The recent pension freedoms have opened up new possibilities in retirement, allowing more of today's recent retirees to enjoy the sixty-something socialite lifestyle. Retirement can be one of the most liberating and exciting life stages, but to get the most freedom and enjoyment out of retirement, it is crucial for people to consider their finances and plan ahead.

THE PENSION REFORMS PROVIDE A GOOD OPPORTUNITY FOR PEOPLE TO REALLY THINK ABOUT AND EVALUATE THEIR FUTURE FINANCES, AND THE OPTIONS AVAILABLE TO THEM. NEW RETIREES ARE EMBRACING THEIR RETIREMENT WITH A WHIRLWIND OF SOCIALISING, ACTIVITY AND TRAVEL ON A PAR WITH THOSE IN THEIR TWENTIES.

PENSION REFORMS PROVIDE A GOOD OPPORTUNITY

The pension reforms provide a good opportunity for people to really think about and evaluate their future finances, and the options available to them. New retirees are embracing their retirement with a whirlwind of socialising, activity and travel on a par with those in their twenties.

New research from Standard Life reveals that 94% of recently retired adults don't feel like they fit the image of a stereotypical pensioner. Freedom (62%) and enjoyment (52%) are the most popular descriptions used by retirees to describe the first year of their retirement, so it's no surprise that this generation are every bit as lively as people in their twenties.

BOTH AGE GROUPS DO SOMETHING 'ACTIVE'

On average, both age groups do something 'active', such as sports or exercise, between three and four times a week, and more than one in six retirees (17%) do something active every day compared to around one in nine (12%) of those in their twenties.

As for how social circles compare, retirees have just as many close friends as twenty-somethings – between five and six on average. 12% of the older generation have more than ten close friends – more than the 10% of twenty-somethings.

WIDENING SOCIAL CIRCLES TO MEET NEW PEOPLE

While the rise of social media means young people are able to keep in closer contact with their friends easily, 89% of retirees say they speak to their close friends at least once a month – a similar figure to those in their twenties (96%). And today's retirees are also feeling confident widening their social circle to meet new people, with one in ten admitting they have tried online dating, and 12% of these meeting up with someone they met online for romance or friendship.

The research also revealed that most retirees (75%) like to go out to a social engagement or to eat at least once a week. Many enjoy a drink or two (69%), and amongst those who do drink, they do so on average three or four days a week, compared to twice a week for the younger generation.

The most popular activities people take up during their first year of retirement are:

- Plan more holidays and go travelling (58%)
- Spend more quality time doing things with family and friends (48%)
- Do more exercise and sport (23%)
- Take up voluntary work (23%)
- Start a new hobby (22%)

PLANNING AHEAD

To fund this active and social lifestyle later in life, planning ahead enabled them to worry less about their financial situation, with over three quarters (77%) having an additional income alongside the State Pension. Over half (54%) were comfortable with their financial situation as they entered retirement, with a further 32% considering their finances as under control. ■

All figures are from Opinium. Total sample size for the survey was 1,034 retirees and 1,022 young people aged 20–29. Fieldwork was undertaken in June 2015. The surveys were carried out online. The figures have been weighted and are representative of all GB adults (aged 18+).

PUTTING MONEY ASIDE FOR THE PROVERBIAL RAINY DAY

Long-term investors rewarded by compound performance

An investor who puts money aside over the long term for the proverbial rainy day is far more likely to achieve their goals than someone looking to 'play the market' in search of a quick profit.

The longer you invest, the bigger the potential effect of compound performance on the original value of your investment. Many investors will be familiar with the term 'compounding' from owning cash savings accounts. The term refers to the process whereby interest on your money is added to the original principal amount and then, in turn, earns interest.

Over time, compounding can make a significant difference. Your investments can benefit from compounding in a similar way if you reinvest any income you receive, although you should remember that the value of stock market investments will fluctuate, causing prices to fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the original amount you invested.

Shares, bonds, property and cash react differently in varying conditions, and opting for more than one asset class can help to ensure your investments won't all rise or fall in value at the same time. Holding a portfolio of investments as part of a collective investment scheme can help to diversify the perils associated with investing in individual assets and markets, as well as less visible hazards such as inflation risk – the possibility that the value of assets will be adversely affected by an increase in the rate of inflation.

Investing in vehicles such as unit trusts, investment trusts and OEICs can also remove a lot of the difficulty associated with managing a broad portfolio. Above all, investors should aim for a level of risk they are comfortable with which reflects their investment objectives. ■

TYPES OF COLLECTIVE INVESTMENT SCHEME

UNIT TRUSTS

Unit trusts pool funds together under one umbrella and then manage them en masse. Investors pay into the unit trust, which then buys assets such as equities or bonds on their behalf.

The monetary value of these assets is divided by the number of units issued when the fund is created to give an initial unit value. This value then fluctuates as the underlying assets trade daily and investors put money in or take money out. As there is no limit to how many units can be created or redeemed on an ongoing basis, unit trusts are known as 'open-ended funds'.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS

An investment trust works along the same principle of raising money from investors to buy assets that it manages on behalf of them all. The main difference is that the investment trust is created by selling a fixed number of shares at the outset. As no new shares are created, investment trusts are known as 'closed-end funds'.

OPEN ENDED INVESTMENT COMPANIES (OEICS)

OEICs are a mixture of a unit trust and an investment trust. OEICs issue shares rather than units but have a different pricing structure to unit trusts. OEICs are based on a single price structure which means buyers and sellers receive the same price.

AUTO ENROLMENT

Reaping the benefits of workplace pension savings

Three years have passed since the introduction of auto enrolment, and employees are really starting to reap the benefits of workplace pension savings. New research has revealed that employer contributions are crucial to boosting pension savings for over half (54%) of those enrolled in a defined contribution pension scheme in the UK.

The latest Scottish Widows' Workplace Pensions Report found that since the introduction of auto enrolment within large- and medium-sized businesses, more than half (52%) of employees in medium-sized businesses are now saving adequately – up six percentage points in the past 12 months – while four in ten (39%) now feel optimistic about their long-term future, compared to 36% in 2014.

KEY RETIREMENT INCOME

The number of employees saving adequately in large businesses has leapt from 53% two years ago to 66%, as an increasing number look towards their workplace pension as a key retirement income.

Six out of ten workers in larger organisations said they will rely on a company pension for a reasonable standard of living in retirement, compared to 40% for employees working for medium businesses and just 32% for small businesses. There has been a marked increase on these figures across the board in the last 12 months, with the biggest increase – nine percentage points – seen amongst employees of large companies.

CONSIDERING A CAREER MOVE

The research found more than a third of medium-to-large business employees see workplace pension schemes as a major incentive when considering a career move. This suggests that in order to attract and retain talent, there is an increasing onus on employers to ensure their staff feel supported and understand the benefit of their workplace scheme.

With auto enrolment a significant driver behind the uplift in savings and positivity, smaller businesses yet to reach their staging dates are still significantly lagging behind. Just four in ten (40%) of employees of small businesses are saving adequately, while a third (30%) confess they are saving nothing at all towards retirement, compared to only 11% of those working for large businesses.

FINANCIAL EDUCATION AND SUPPORT

While the findings demonstrate positive engagement with workplace savings amongst medium and large business employees, they also bring to light increasing pressure on employers to increase contributions and provide wider practical financial education and support.

More than a quarter (29%) of mid-sized organisations' workers and almost a quarter (24%) of employees at the largest organisations think that employers should increase contributions by a little each year. ■

PROFESSIONAL FINANCIAL ADVICE

Almost a quarter (23%) of those working in larger companies say employers should pay for full professional financial advice, while 41% feel employers should provide information on how to budget for retirement. In comparison, those working for smaller businesses think that individuals should increase their own contributions or be reminded to do so by their employer, and only 27% think it's up to employers to provide budgeting advice.

FINANCIAL GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS

Give your children or grandchildren a financial present they can unwrap

With Christmas just round the corner, making an investment for your children or grandchildren is a great way to give them a financial start in life, long after the festivities are over. Even small amounts can really add up if you save regularly from a child's birth, and there are many ways to invest on behalf of a child.

JUNIOR INDIVIDUAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT (ISA)

The first and easiest option to choose is a Junior Individual Savings Account (ISA), if the child is eligible. Junior ISAs are flexible, tax-efficient and can only be accessed by the child when they reach the age of 18. Parents and other relatives can save up to £4,080 in the 2015/16 tax year in a Junior ISA, and like adult ISAs, Junior ISAs can be held in cash or stocks and shares, or you can divide the allowance between both.

CHILD TRUST FUND (CTF) TRANSFER INTO A JUNIOR ISA

Changes to CTF regulations now mean investors can choose to transfer existing Child Trust Funds into Junior ISAs. Junior ISA tax advantages may depend on your individual circumstances, and tax rules may change in the future.

Your existing CTF provider may make a charge for carrying out a transfer. If your child does not qualify because they have already used their Junior ISA allowance for the current tax year, or they have a CTF that they do not wish to transfer into a Junior ISA, then there are other options you could consider.

NS&I CHILDREN'S BOND

If you are a parent, grandparent, great grandparent or legal guardian, you can invest between £25 and £3,000 tax-free for five years at a time until the child reaches 16, at which point they will gain control of the bond. The interest rate is guaranteed, so you'll know how much the investment will earn at the end of the five-year term But if you need access to the money before the end of the five years, you'll face a penalty – the equivalent of 90 days' interest on the amount you cash in.

REGULAR SAVINGS

If you're able to commit to making monthly contributions, then you can often benefit from higher rates of interest with a regular savings account.

They're ideal for savers who are saving for something specific and wish to drip-feed cash into their account in a disciplined way, but these accounts will usually limit the number of withdrawals you can make each year and restrict the amount of money you can invest each month.

Be careful not to miss a payment or exceed the limit on withdrawals, as doing so can cost you interest.

COMPLETE AN R85 FORM

In the 2015/16 tax year, each child is entitled to a tax-free allowance of £10,600. Make sure you complete an HM Revenue & Customs form R85, so that any interest will be paid free of tax.

If you haven't done this, you can reclaim it for them using form R40.

However, if you give your children money and it makes more than £100 a year before tax in interest (or £200 if both parents give money), all this income (not just the income over £100) will be taxed as if it were your own. This limit applies to income from gifts from parents only, not other family members.

START INVESTING

When investing for children, it is a good idea to go for something that gives you exposure to a broad spread of companies and sectors. It is important to get the right balance between good growth potential and not taking too much risk.

You can hold investments on behalf of your child in a bare trust or a designated account. A designated account will be earmarked for your child but will be in your name and treated as your investment, and, as such, any income of over £100 will be taxed at your rate, whereas a bare trust will be treated as your child's for tax purposes. A designated account set up in the right way (i.e. irrevocable) is treated in the same way as a bare trust, and, in both cases, if funds originate from a parent and income exceeds £100pa, it will be taxed on the parent. The trustees of a bare trust have legal control until the child reaches the age of 18 (age 16 in Scotland).

SET UP A PENSION

A Stakeholder Pension Plan for a child is available, and anyone can contribute (whether it is a parent, aunt, uncle or grandparent), usually having to invest as little as £20 gross. When the child reaches their 18th birthday, they take ownership of the pension plan and make the decisions on its management. Any money in the child's pension plan is tied up until they can actually take their benefits, which currently could be any time from age 55 (rising to 57 in 2028). ■

A WONDERFUL GIFT FOR THE FUTURE

Saving for a child today is a wonderful gift for their future. Not only can they start their adult lives with some savings in hand, but getting kids involved early with saving also helps them learn important lessons about money. To find out more, please contact us for further information.

DON'T PANIC

Overvalued Chinese shares come to a shuddering halt after hitting a seven-year peak

In August, the Chinese Government attempted to stimulate the economy by devaluing its currency (the Renminbi) and suspending trading on many stocks. The effect of this caused a tsunami throughout both Chinese and global markets, followed by significant falls in global stock markets, including the S&P in the US and the FTSE in the UK. On 24 August, the day many in the media called 'Black Monday', the Chinese market was down by 8%, UK markets fell by over 4.5% and the US by over 3.5%[1], with the FTSE falling below 6,000 on 22 September.

OVERVALUED SHARES

Shares in China had soared 150% in the 12 months to mid-June as individual investors piled into the rising market, often borrowing heavily to do so. But the shares were overvalued and the momentum came to a shuddering halt when shares hit a seven-year peak.

About £74bn was wiped off the value of the FTSE 100, and, on Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average slumped by a record of more than 1,000 points at one stage.

BUYING OPPORTUNITY

The falls need to be looked at in context of the overall picture. For instance, the FTSE 100 Index had broken its all-time high earlier this year, and the situation created a buying opportunity. It's worth remembering what investor and mutual fund pioneer Sir John Templeton said: 'The time of maximum pessimism is the best time to buy, and the time of maximum optimism is the best time to sell.'

Professional investors haven't been filled with panic, regardless of the situation the media has portrayed. Most of them are viewing this as a 'market correction' – just bringing things that have got a little inflated back down to earth.

REASONABLE MARGIN

Warren Buffett, the American investor and philanthropist, puts it very succinctly: 'Our favourite holding period is forever.' Over the long term, investors do experience market falls which happen periodically. Generally, the wrong thing to do when markets fall by a reasonable margin is to panic and sell out of the market – this just means you have taken the loss. It's important to remember why you're invested in the first place and make sure that rationale hasn't changed.

Although headlines have focused on the decline in the Chinese stock market and the knock-on impact on other global investments, most commentators have not changed their long-term view on markets or the global economic outlook and remain cautiously optimistic on the outlook for equity and property markets, supported by an improvement generally in company profits. ■

LONG-TERM VIEW

If you do decide to make changes to your investments, make sure they're for the right reasons. Don't react out of panic. And, if possible, take a long-term view. The longer you invest, the bigger the potential effect of compound performance on the original value of your investment.

PRE-RETIREMENT PREDICAMENT

Older generation choose to work into later life amidst family concerns

More than a third (34%) of over-55s plan to continue working past what would previously have been considered their retirement age of 65, according to figures released from Scottish Widows think tank the Centre for the Modern Family.

OVER HALF (54%) OF THOSE WHO CHOOSE TO STAY IN EMPLOYMENT SAID THAT THEY DON'T FEEL OLD ENOUGH TO RETIRE, AND 24% WANT TO KEEP WORKING BECAUSE THEY ENJOY THEIR JOB AND WANT TO CONTINUE THEIR PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

The research found that a third (33%) of over-55s plan to continue working in some capacity as they approach retirement, with a further 45% unsure or yet to make plans for later life, suggesting fewer people are choosing linear career paths and traditional approaches to work followed by retirement.

OPPORTUNITY TO CONTINUE WORKING

The number of over-65s choosing to continue working has risen 26% to 1.1 million since the abolition of the default retirement age in October 2011, and despite the difficulties facing many 'pre-retirees', a growing number of older workers are taking the changes to legislation as an opportunity to continue working for their own well-being. The Centre for the Modern Family research found a significant gap between those who want to carry on working versus those who need to continue earning.

Over half (54%) of those who choose to stay in employment said that they don't feel old enough to retire, and 24% want to keep working because they enjoy their job and want to continue their professional development. The study highlighted that one in five men (17%) and one in ten women noticed improvements in family relationships as a result of spending more time independently.

FINANCIAL PRESSURE

The changing shape of the family unit has also impacted the possibility of retirement for many over-55s, with ageing relatives and boomerang children adding financial pressure at both ends of the spectrum. Almost a fifth admitted that they will continue to work in order to support their family financially, yet 17% felt their ability to do their job is impacted because they are tired and stressed from balancing work and family life.

Almost half (44%) of over-55s who plan to continue working also said they will need to do so in order to supplement their pension, and a further 13% still have debt or a mortgage to pay off. More than half (54%) of over-55s admitted that they are already struggling to make ends meet and have had to adjust their spending habits before considering life on a pension. Almost a quarter (23%) say they have spent their savings or contribute less to savings now (24%) as a result of living costs in the last year, while a third (33%) have cut down on leisure spending.

GENDER GAP

The research also uncovered a new trend of the 'unretired', with 15% of men and 9% of women returning to work post-retirement, and a further 25% and 29% respectively saying they would be willing to do so.

A noticeable gender gap appeared between desire and necessity, as the majority of men (57%) said they returned to work because they were bored or restless, but the main reason for women (38%) was the need for money to meet day-to-day family costs. However, a fifth (20%) of retired women who would not return to paid employment after retirement said it was because they had too many family commitments.

Regardless of the motive for continuing or returning to work, feelings amongst family members are yet to catch up with the attitudes of the workers themselves. This suggests that older workers are juggling competing priorities as they try to balance the demands of their finances, family life, health and jobs.

HEALTH IMPLICATIONS

The research highlighted that 23% of people worry about the health implications of working longer for their older relatives. Family members also worry that for older relatives, choosing to work for longer could have a negative impact on their family, with 18% saying they feel both older and younger generations will have less time to spend together as a result. Almost one in ten (9%) said it would make managing their own work and family life balance more difficult – a figure which rises to 13% among parents with children under 18.

However, positive signs are emerging that families can spot the benefits of a longer working life, both on health and family relationships. More than a quarter (27%) feel that older relatives will be able to remain active for longer, while 23% feel they become good role models for younger generations. Almost one in ten (8%) also feel it will relieve the burden of financially supporting older relatives financially later in life. ■

YOU STILL DON'T HAVE A WILL?

Save your family unnecessary distress at an already difficult time

Your Will tells everyone what should happen to your money, possessions and property after you die (all these things together are called your 'estate'). If you don't leave a Will, the law decides how your estate is passed on – and this may not be in line with your wishes.

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE A WILL

1. A Will makes it much easier for your family or friends to sort everything out when you die – without a Will, the process can be more time-consuming and stressful.
2. If you don't write a Will, everything you own will be shared out in a standard way defined by the law, which isn't always the way you might want.
3. A Will can help reduce the amount of Inheritance Tax that may be payable on the value of the property and money you leave behind.
4. Writing a Will is especially important if you have children or other family who depend on you financially, or if you want to leave something to people outside your immediate family.

PERSONAL WISHES

Your Will tells people two very important things:

- Who should have your money, property and possessions when you die
- Who will be in charge of organising your estate and following the instructions you leave in your Will – this person is called your 'executor', and you can name more than one person if you want to

You can also use your Will to tell people about any other wishes you have, like instructions for your burial or cremation. Your executor will do their best to make sure your wishes are followed, as long as they don't involve breaking the law.

It might not always be possible to follow your instructions (for example, a person you want to leave something to might die before you do), but if you have a Will, there's a better chance of things happening the way you want.

LEGAL VALIDITY

Your Will doesn't have to be on special paper or use a lot of legal language. A document is a valid Will as long as it:

- Says how your estate should be shared out when you die
- Is signed and dated by you in the presence of two witnesses, and then signed by the two witnesses in your presence – the witnesses can't be people who are going to inherit anything from you (or their husband/wife or civil partner)
- Was made when you were able to make your own decisions and you weren't put under pressure about who to leave things to

CAREFUL PLANNING

If your family is quite small and you want to leave everything to them, making your Will should be quite straightforward.

If your situation is more complicated (for example, if you have a second family or you want to leave money and gifts to lots of people), you may need to plan more carefully. Either way, don't put it off – make sure that what you leave behind passes to the people you intended.

Start by thinking about what you want to leave to who and then talk to your family – they may have some suggestions you haven't thought of. Once you have a plan, look at the different options for making a Will. ■

MAKE SURE YOUR WISHES ARE CARRIED OUT

Some people put off making a Will, often until they're in their later life. Making a Will can save your family unnecessary distress at an already difficult time and makes sure your wishes are carried out when it comes to who inherits what.

FINANCIAL DECISIONS

Flexibility to use your pension pot in the way that suits your needs

Working out how to make adequate financial provision for retirement is one of the most important financial decisions most of us will ever face. However, it can be a daunting topic, and the options may seem overwhelming. Over the past year, there has been a seismic change to the retirement landscape with the introduction of the Government's 'pension freedoms'.

These reforms – announced in the 2014 Budget and extended this year – give you the flexibility to use your pension pot in the way that suits your needs, with the aim of creating better financial outcomes for you and your family.

As long as you are over the age of 55 (rising to 57 in 2028), you have unlimited access to any Defined Contribution (DC) pension pot – to save, spend or invest as you see fit.

For many people, retirement now represents an opportunity to realise life-long ambitions, pursue new passions or help family members with their income needs.

UNDERSTANDING THE OPTIONS

There is no easy answer or 'one-size-fits-all' solution, so it is important to understand the options. You do not have to choose just one option, and you may find that a 'mix and match' approach is the most appropriate for your situation.

LEAVE YOUR PENSION POT UNTOUCHED

You may be able to delay taking your pension until a later date. Your pot then continues to grow tax-free, potentially providing more income once you access it.

USE YOUR POT TO BUY A GUARANTEED INCOME FOR LIFE – AN ANNUITY

You can choose to take up to a quarter (25%) of your pot as a one-off tax-free lump sum, then convert the rest into a taxable income for life called an 'annuity'. There are different lifetime annuity options and features to choose from that affect how much income you would receive. You can also choose to provide an income for life for a dependant or other beneficiary after you die.

USE YOUR POT TO PROVIDE A FLEXIBLE RETIREMENT INCOME – FLEXI-ACCESS DRAWDOWN

With this option, you take up to 25% (a quarter) of your pension pot or of the amount you allocate for drawdown as a tax-free lump sum, then re-invest the rest into funds designed to provide you with a regular taxable income. You set the income you want, though this may be adjusted periodically depending on the performance of your investments. Unlike with a lifetime annuity, your income isn't guaranteed for life – so your investments need to be managed carefully.

TAKE SMALL CASH SUMS FROM YOUR POT

You can use your existing pension pot to take cash as and when you need it and leave the rest untouched where it can continue to grow tax-free. For each cash withdrawal, the first 25% (quarter) is tax-free, and the rest counts as taxable income. There may be charges each time you make a cash withdrawal and/or limits on how many withdrawals you can make each year.

With this option, your pension pot isn't re-invested into new funds specifically chosen to pay you a regular income, and it won't provide for a dependant after you die. There are also more tax implications to consider than with the previous two options.

TAKE YOUR WHOLE POT AS CASH

Cashing in your pension pot will not give you a secure retirement income.

You could close your pension pot and take the entire amount as cash in one go if you wish. The first 25% (quarter) will be tax-free, and you will then be taxed at your marginal rate of income tax.

There are many risks associated with cashing in your entire pot. For example, it's highly likely that you'll be subject to a significant tax bill, it won't pay you or any dependant a regular income and, without very careful planning, you could run out of money and have nothing to live on in retirement.

MIXING YOUR OPTIONS

You don't have to choose one option when deciding how to access your pension – you can mix and match as you like, and take cash and income at different times to suit your needs. If you wish, you can also keep saving into a pension and get tax relief up to age 75.

Which option or combination is right for you will depend on:

- When you stop or reduce your work
- Your income objectives and attitude to risk
- Your age and health
- The size of your pension pot and other savings
- Any pension or other savings your spouse or partner has, if relevant
- Whether you have financial dependants
- Whether your circumstances are likely to change in the future

IT'S GOOD TO TALK

When was the last time you discussed the family's finances?

The unexpected death of a spouse can lead to considerable financial problems if the surviving partner is not fully aware of the state of the family's finances. All too often, couples do not fully discuss the implications of the death of a spouse or partner, and this can create additional stress that could easily have been avoided. So it's worth taking some time out to consider the following areas of your family's finances.

PENSION PROVISION

You also need to consider what death benefits will apply if you die before drawing your pension benefits under your current and any earlier pension arrangements. Will a lump sum death benefit be payable? Will provision be made for a pension to be payable to a surviving spouse, registered civil partner or dependants?

If a lump sum is payable to any one or more of a range of potential beneficiaries at the discretion of the trustees of your scheme, establish that your desired beneficiaries fall within the eligible group of beneficiaries and notify the trustees of who you would like them to consider when making any lump sum payment. Schemes typically have a benefit nomination form for this purpose.

INVESTMENTS

Provided you say so in your Will, investments (such as unit trusts), investment trusts and shares can revert to your spouse or registered civil partner when you die, although in some instances the tax advantages of certain investments may be lost. If you have a substantial investment portfolio, it may be advisable to bequeath some of the investments in your Will directly to your children or grandchildren to make use of the IHT nil rate threshold, provided you leave enough for your surviving spouse or registered civil partner to live on. If a discretionary trust is used with your surviving spouse or registered civil partner named as a beneficiary, the trustees can pay capital or income or make interest-free loans to that spouse.

WILLS

Don't assume everything will automatically go to your spouse or registered civil partner when you die. Ensure that you have a properly drawn-up Will. Ask someone else as well as your spouse or registered civil partner to be an executor, and, finally, don't forget to tell them and other family members where they can find a copy. ■

DON'T LEAVE ANY OF THESE AREAS TO CHANCE

The information provided is for general guidance only. However, if you leave any of these areas to chance, in the event of your premature death, they will almost certainly cause further distress to your spouse or registered civil partner and family. UNTAPPED PROPERTY WEALTH

4.8 million retirees are 'going without'

FUNDING RETIREMENT

With people living longer and retiring on smaller pension pots, funding retirement poses a very real challenge for many. In fact, more than two thirds of retirees (68%) have untapped property wealth which they may not have even considered or don't realise they could be accessing to fund a more comfortable lifestyle.

Two in five of those aged 65 and over (42%) – 4.8 million pensioners[1] – have 'gone without' due to tight budgets according to LV=. These pensioners sacrifice items such as holidays abroad (25%), a new car (16%) or dining out (15%), and one in twenty (5%) can't afford to buy birthday and Christmas presents for friends and family. Regionally, retirees in the South West and East of England are most likely to go without, with those in Wales (5%) and Scotland (5%) most likely to find it a struggle to keep up with their utility payments.

'GOING WITHOUT'

Of those retirees whose income is less than the equivalent of earning the minimum wage, the number 'going without' rises significantly to 54%. Furthermore, one in seven (15%) can't afford to replace household goods, and over 150,000 are struggling with their utility bills[2].

It seems that a considerable number of retirees are 'going without' in order to stay within budget. However, for many, help could be closer to home than they realise. The research shows that five in six (83%) over-65s own their home and are sitting on an average of £235,750 in property equity[3], which they could access to have a happier and more comfortable retirement.■

BRIDGING A PENSION INCOME GAP

Despite this, only one in twenty (7%) over-65s have unlocked the capital in their property to help fund their retirement. Nearly a fifth (17%) of pensioners incorrectly thought they would pass on debt by using equity release, while nearly a quarter (24%) mistakenly thought that their equity release borrowing could exceed the value of their property. It would seem that misconceptions and low awareness of equity release are preventing people from accessing the money tied up in their home to help them to bridge their pension income gap.

AN EQUITY RELEASE PRODUCT WILL REDUCE THE VALUE OF YOUR ESTATE, WILL NOT BE SUITABLE FOR EVERYONE AND MAY AFFECT YOUR ENTITLEMENT TO STATE BENEFITS. EQUITY RELEASE MAY REQUIRE A LIFETIME MORTGAGE OR HOME REVERSION PLAN. TO UNDERSTAND THE FEATURES AND RISKS, ASK FOR A PERSONALISED ILLUSTRATION.

[1] 42% of respondents aged 65 and over have 'gone without'. If this is applied to the number of people aged 65 and over in the UK (11.4 million – ONS, 2015), then 4.8 million people will have 'gone without'.

[2] According to research, 16 people aged 65 and over have an income of less than the minimum wage, which is 1.3% of everyone aged 65 and over. Applying this to the 11.4 million figure from ONS, 2015, this means that 151,585 people are struggling to pay their utility bills who fall in this category.

[3] According to research carried out by Opinium Research on behalf of LV=, the mean value of equity in over-65s' homes is £235,752.

The research was carried out by Opinium Research from 27–29 July 2015. The total sample size was 2,042 British adults over 18 years old and was conducted online. Results are weighted to a nationally representative criteria.
